PATROL SHIPS ARE ORDERED NOT TO SHOOT

Washington Sources Assert Duty Only to 'Convoy' Nazi Raiders.

MISSION TO SPOT CRAFT

U. S. Vessels Reported Now Operating 2,000 Miles From Shore.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The United States Atlantic patrol has been ordered to "avoid shooting at all costs short of getting sunk," a usually well-informed official said today.

The patrol, now operating at least 2,000 miles off shore and within 1,500 miles of western British ports, has been informed, this source continued, that its mission is not to destroy Axis surface, submarine or aircraft but "to spot them," broadcast information regarding their whereabouts and remain in contact until British forces can overtake the Axis raider.

The foregoing information came from a source so usually well-informed as to be persuasive. The United Press checked with the navy department and was told by an authorized spokesman:

"We have no comment on that one."

But the foregoing outline of patrol objectives appeared perfectly to fit the pattern of what many persons here believe is the design of President Roosevelt's expanded North Atlantic patrol. That is, that the American patrol vessels shall "convoy the Axis raiders" rather than convoy munitions-laden vessels in the British life line.

Asked at a recent press conference what a patrol vessel should do if it encountered an Axis warship attacking a merchant ship, Mr. Roosevelt said the instructions were to radio him for orders.

Congressional discussion of the convoy problem has subsided for the time being but is likely to develop again Monday when Republicans in the house plan to attack administration legislation to authorize Mr. Roosevelt to requisition foreign shipping in American ports.

Meantime, the plan to place 25 tankers immediately at the disposal of the maritime commission for "service to Great Britain" has been checked for a few days. The plan is complete and has been put in writing but the ships are not expected to be made available to the British before the middle of next week or later. When the first 25 tankers have been selected and assigned for duty, the commission and the shipping industry will undertake immediately to designate 25 more for identical service.

The ships are expected to transport oil to a western hemisphere port for transfer to British ships for the trans-Atlantic voyage, thereby easing demands on the British tanker fleet.

Coincident with these moves to aid Great Britain, a congressional source predicted that the supply

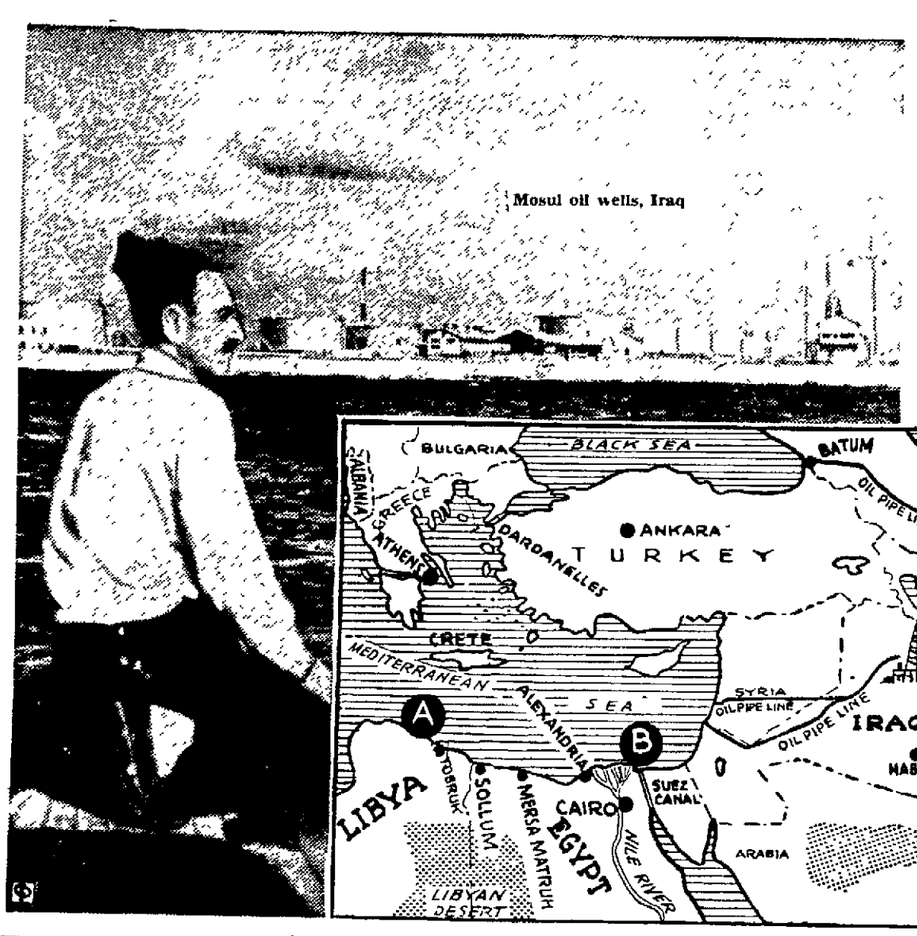
SUSPECT HELD

Man Charged With Murder of Former Ohioan.

JACKSON, Mich.—(AP)—Municipal Judge A. W. Wiggins held John F. Collins without bail today on charges of murder and manslaughter in the April 19 death of Elmer Parker, former Van Wert resident.

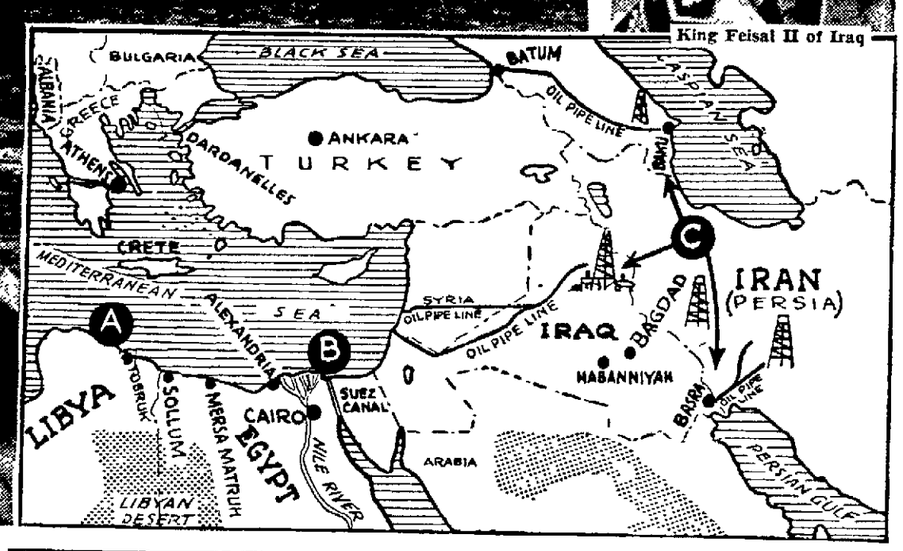
Mrs. Helen Christmas, a witness, testified at a hearing that she saw Collins kick Parker as he lay on a sidewalk following a fight. Police Chief Edward C. Harris said Collins admitted striking the victim for insulting his woman companion."

Where Threat of Holy War Grows In Near East



Mosul oil wells, Iraq

King Feisal II of Iraq



The clash of Iraq troops, spurred on by pro-Nazi leadership, with British Imperials landed to protect the British oil fields in that nation, led to fear of a Holy War in the near east today. At top are the rich Mosul oil fields, King Feisal II, in whose stead Premier Rashid Ali Beg Gailani rules the country, as the result of a recent coup, which ousted the previous pro-British government. Map shows points at which British holdings are now threatened (1) Tobruk, (2) Suez canal and (3) the Mosul oil fields. Picture at the bottom shows the British Imperials moving an armored car at strategic Habbaniyah airport in Iraq.

DRAFT BOARDS AID SPEED-UP

County Told to Re-Classify Men, Deferring Those Needed For Defense Work.

Richland county's three selective service boards were called on today to do their part in speeding up the national defense program by re-classifying men in the 1-A group and deferring all men who are needed in industries producing defense materials.

The instructions, which came from state draft headquarters, are the result of President Roosevelt's order to speed up production of essential war materials.

Board Clerks here said, however, that they anticipate few changes in their lists since the boards were careful not to order any men inducted into the army who might be needed in the city's industrial plants handling defense orders.

"No tool maker or machinist for whom the employer has asked deferment has been ordered into service by this board," Bryan Stygert, Board 2 clerk, said. "The board has foreseen a labor shortage in certain industries and was careful to defer essential workers," he added.

Chester W. Goble, director of the state selective service organization, suggested that the local boards place necessary industrial

SUN SHINES

Derby Gets Clear Weather; Post Time Set at 5:45.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (INS) — A bright sun appeared early and the prospects were for clear Kentucky derby weather this afternoon for the 67th running of the turf classic on a lightning-fast track.

"Fair today, cloudy tonight, not much change in temperature."

The mercury, which fell from a high of 80 degrees yesterday to the fifties during the night, was expected to reach summer level before the big race. Post time was set for 5:45 p. m.

BAKE THEIR OWN

Akron Housewives Act To Offset Bakery Strike.

AKRON—(U.P.)—Housewives revived their bread and pastry baking skills today as a strike of 400 bakers entered its third day and supplies of local stores were almost exhausted.

Negotiations between the Bakers' Union (AFL) and employers were to continue today. The union demands a $6 weekly wage increase. The employers have offered $2.

HE'S BETTER

Fritz Kreisler Reported Slightly Improved At Hospital.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The condition of Fritz Kreisler, 66-year-old internationally famous violinist, was reported as slightly improved at Roosevelt hospital today. The noted musician suffered a skull fracture when struck by a truck last Saturday.

Fire Alarms In April Set Record For City Firemen

With more than 65 calls for grass fires, Mansfield firemen made a record-breaking number of fire runs during April, Chief Charles J. Seeberger announced today that 79 runs were made, at least 20 more than any previous record.

The fire chief attributed the record number of calls to unusually dry weather for April, which increased the number of grass fires considerably.

Most serious fire for the month was on April 20, when every available piece of equipment was called out to battle a $100,000 fire at the Home Materials lumber yard. Firemen worked for two days before finally extinguishing it.

Seeburger said that he had not yet compiled his records for the month and could not estimate the amount of fire loss during the period.

Congress Starts Action on President's Tax Suggestion

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Congress today began hunting in earnest for additional revenue after hearing from President Roosevelt that "a minimum" of $3,500,000,000 in extra taxes would be needed to pay part of the extraordinary defense costs.

The goal, announced by the president last night in a letter to Chairman Doughton (D. N. C.) of the house ways and means committee, was the same as recommended previously by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau.

The stress, however, which Mr. Roosevelt laid upon the duty of every American to contribute to the nation's defense "in accordance with his talents and treasure" emphasized the administration's determination not to lower its sights in seeking additional funds.

In a letter made public at Charlottesville, Va., where he was visiting at the home of his military aide, Major General Edwin M. Watson, the president told Doughton:

"I hope your committee, with the help of the treasury, will formulate a tax bill which will convince the country that a national

FIRE SWEEPS MANILA AREA

MANILA —(AP)— The worst fire in Manila's history swept through three square miles of flimsy tenements in the thickly populated Tondo district today. At least three persons were dead and 25,000 homeless.

Property damage was believed to approximate $500,000.

The flames, whipped by a strong wind, drove thousands of the city's poorer residents and their cattle into the bay and mudflats nearby.

Experts Fear Severe Drought, Farmers In County Worried

Richland county farmers looked at cloudless skies and dusty fields again today and hoped for showers to avert what state crop specialists predicted may be a severe drought.

The weatherman offered a ray of hope in his forecast of increasing cloudiness and warmer for Sunday, but there was no immediate promise of rain.

It will be fair and continued cool tonight with the possibility of light frost in some sections of the state the forecast said.

Although the temperature dropped to 35 degrees this morning, no frost damage was reported in the county. Despite the low reading, temperatures for the past 24 hours were about average. It was 56 at noon today.

While Northcentral Ohio has received more moisture in recent weeks than the central and southern parts of the state, County Agent George E. Ganyard said rain is needed in Richland county to save pasture lands and give new crops a start. Wells and cisterns on county farms are low and will be dry unless there is heavy rain soon, farmers said.

Deficiency of rainfall in the area totals about six inches and ranges up to 10 inches in southern Ohio, F. P. Reed, extension soil conservationist at Ohio State university, said.

Oats and clover crops face the most serious damage, Mr. Reed points out, unless there is rain soon, the county agent said.

BEAUTY AT GATE

Ohio State Fair To Have Girls in Nobby Uniform.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Gate keepers and ticket takers at the Ohio State Fair, Aug. 23-30 will be attractively uniformed young ladies, selected principally for their "intelligence, honesty, neatness and winning smiles," John T. Brown, state director of agriculture, has announced.

Brown said he also would release men for defense industries and selective service.

OIL STOVE EXPLODES

Truck, Removed From Flaming Trailer, Later Crashes Into Pier at Subway.

Tragedy paid a double visit to Mr. and Mrs. John Williamson of Louisville, Ky., and their three children, James, 19, Jack, 14, and Jean, 7, near Mansfield last night.

Fire started by an oil stove explosion destroyed their trailer home near the Black Fork creek on U. S. Route 42. Shortly afterward, Mrs. Williamson suffered a possible jaw fracture when their truck crashed into the center pillar of the Park avenue east subway.

State highway patrolmen reported that the fire started while the Williamsons were preparing their evening meal. The trailer had been parked on the side of the road where, according to Williamson, the family intended to stop over night.

So swiftly did the flames spread through the trailer that the family was unable to save any personal belongings. The patrolmen helped disconnect the truck which was threatened by the fire. They treated Williamson for minor burns about the hands.

Mrs. Williamson was injured a short time later when the truck crashed into the subway pillar. She was taken to the hospital in an auto, driven by her son, James. Hospital attendants said she suffered the possible fracture of the jaw and severe lacerations and bruises.

Salvation Army officials gave the father and children lodging for the night.

Williamson said that they had lost most of their possessions in the fire. The truck was loaded with pottery which the family has been selling in various cities. They were returning to Louisville from Cleveland at the time of the fire and accident.

FUND WORKERS SPUR CAMPAIGN

Skip Report Session to Devote Full Day to Drive; Pledges Continue to Pour In.

Mansfield Community fund campaign workers skipped their daily luncheon report session today in order to devote the entire day to solicitation of pledges.

Fund officials said the new pledges since yesterday have considerably increased the $44,497.55 subscribed so far toward the $64,375 goal. Pledges obtained since yesterday will not be tabulated until the luncheon report session Monday.

BETTER FILL UP

Gasoline Prices to Advance Half Cent Tuesday.

Gasoline prices in the Mansfield area and the rest of Ohio will go up a half-cent a gallon next Tuesday, it was announced today.

The Standard Oil Company of Ohio was the first to announce the price raise, but other leading companies were expected to follow suit.

The price change will affect gasoline for tank wagon and service station delivery. The increase will boost the price of regular gas to 17½ cents and ethyl gas to 19½ cents at Standard stations, company officials said here.

Gasoline prices have been below normal for many months because of excess stocks built up in the United States due to loss of the European market, W. T. Holiday, president of the Standard Oil company, said.

Empire Troops Strike Back In Mosul Area

(By United Press)

Adolf Hitler's Luftwaffe was reported flying toward the Near East today as British imperials struck back at pro-Nazi Iraq forces in defense of the Mosul oil fields and at Axis troops pounding at the defenses of the besieged Libyan port of Tobruk.

A report broadcast by the Turkish radio at Ankara and picked up in Zurich said that a German air squadron was seen flying along the south coast of Turkey in the direction of French Syria, beyond which the British were engaged in bitter conflict with forces of Premier Rashid Ali Gailani in the deserts of western Iraq.

Axis sources, expressing sympathy for the Iraqi, were still silent on whether Baghdad had appealed to them for aid or what they would do about the new war front in the Near East, but the Berlin and Rome newspapers launched a campaign designed to show that the Arab world was inflamed against Britain.

Details of the fighting were meager but included:

A British report that R. A. F. airplanes, presumably flying from Palestine, had attacked and silenced several Iraq batteries that had been shelling the British air base at Habbaniya. Fighting was reported still in progress.

A London suggestion that British imperials recently landed at Basra would march on Baghdad in an effort to overthrow the pro-Axis government and end the threat to the British oil fields.

A Berlin report, quoting an official Iraq statement, that 30 tons of bombs were dropped on Habbaniya airdrome on Friday by "Iraq planes" and that 26 British planes were destroyed.

A report from the same source that a British motorized column had been repulsed in an attempt to take the southwestern Iraq airdrome of Rofi, near Rutbah, and that a number of British tanks had been destroyed or captured.

German sources also reported that the British had attempted to bomb the residence of the Iraq premier.

Berlin quoted the Syrian radio as reporting that Iraqi troops had occupied several border points, presumably on the frontier of western Iraq, which touches on Transjordan and Syria and through which the oil pipe lines run to British ports in Palestine.

Germany and Italy had not yet taken an open part in the Near Eastern fighting, but both Rome and Berlin expressed interest and sympathy in the Iraq developments, received the first reports on results of fighting there and were expected by the British to attempt to lend aid—possibly airplanes or even air-borne troops—to the Iraqi regime.

In North Africa, the British reported that their artillery and troops had again turned back intense Axis attacks on the besieged garrison at Tobruk, where enemy offensives were becoming steadily more intense. The German high command, however, emphasized that Tobruk was well defended and that it would take some time to capture the Libyan port.

The British were rapidly reorganizing the expeditionary force rescued from Greece in order to stand off the Axis thrusts through Libya and probably through Syria against the Suez canal.

On another African front, the British reported that their troops operating in Ethiopia had occupied Ualdia, which is 50 miles north of Dessye.

In the air war, the Germans raided Liverpool again for several hours and with great inten-

NEW POLICY: Japan Drafts Stronger Diplomatic Program

(By United Press)

TOKYO—A detailed new program of diplomatic policy intended to deal with "a new phase of the world situation" has been drafted by the government and submitted to Emperor Hirohito for his imperial sanction, it was understood today.

Disclosure of the new program, which follows Japan's neutrality treaty with Russia, coincided with a surge of Nationalist demands that the government proceed at once to harden its policy toward the United States and Great Britain and launch its campaign of southward expansion.

The Domei news agency reported that Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, who negotiated the Russian pact, submitted the foreign policy program this morning.

Upon his return from the palace, the agency added, Matsuoka attended a liaison meeting of government leaders at which Prince Fumimaro Konoye, the premier, Gen. Hideki Tojo, war minister; Adm. Koshiro Oikawa, navy minister, and the chiefs of the high command were present.

A dispatch to the newspaper Yomiuri from Shanghai alleged that signature of a Chinese-British military pact was imminent. It reported that Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, the British ambassador to China, had arrived at Chungking yesterday to sign the pact.

SUNK: Rescue Ships Sent to Bottom of Mediterranean Sea

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Two British destroyers, carrying 700 men who had just escaped from a burning troop transport, were sunk during the evacuation of Greece and losses were believed to have been heavy.

Many more thousands of British-Anzac troops, however, were saved under the very eyes of the advancing Germans.

An admiralty announcement said the destroyers Diamond and Wryneck, loaded with imperial troops, were sunk by German dive-bombers off the coast of Greece.

Fifty survivors were rescued by another destroyer and a lifeboat (the second rescue in two days for the 50 men) and they may have reached Greece again.

During the mass embarkment from the Nauopolia on the night of April 24, one loaded transport was set afire. From the flaming ship the destroyer Diamond rescued 600 and the Wryneck 100—but the very next morning the Diamond and Wryneck were lost.

The dead must have approached 900. In addition to the rescued men from the burning transport, the Diamond carried a normal complement of 145, and the Wryneck 98.

Relentlessly pursuing the evacuees, Axis E-boats Thursday attacked a large convoy of troops in Kasos straits, but the attacks were driven off without loss.

Following the evacuation, Admiral Andrew Cunningham, commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean fleet, congratulated the royal navy and merchant marine for taking off some 45,000 troops and a large number of refugees, with the total loss of only two destroyers and four transports.

HONEST, CAPTAIN JIM — THE 'HUMMING BIRD' LOOKS SO GRAND WITH THE NICE, NEW WHITE SAILS — LIKE A LOVELY WHITE BIRD — ONLY NICER
I JUST LOVE TO RIDE ON SHIPS — THE OCEAN IS SO CLEAN AN' QUIET — NO TRAFFIC LIGHTS — AN' IT'S NEVER CROWDED.
YOU DON'T HAVE TO DO NOTHIN' 'CEPT HAVE LOTSA FUN AN' THINK HOW TERRIBLE LUCKY YOU ARE
DARRELL McCLURE
ISN'T IT TOO WONDERFUL! I'M ALWAYS AFRAID IT MUST ALL BE A DREAM AND I'LL WAKE UP AND FIND I'M TRAMPING ALONG THE HIGHWAY AGAIN — HUNGRY AND HOPELESS
ORANGE JU
JOHN LOAM PROP
ALL YOU CAN DRINK FOR A DIME
WITH THE HELP OF PROVIDENCE THAT NIGHTMARE HAS VANISHED FOREVER — THANKS TO THAT SWEET LITTLE ORPHAN AND THE KINDNESS OF CAPTAIN AND MRS SALTEE
WE CAN NOW FACE THE FUTURE WITH HOPE AND CONFIDENCE
IT SEEMS A MIRACLE TO THINK WHAT A LITTLE CHARITY AND KINDNESS CAN DO
GEE, ZERO — THIS IS GRAND?
ROLLIN' DOWN TO RIO
DARRELL McCLURE
HONEST MR DUFF — THIS IS THE CUTEST LITTLE KITCHEN — IT'S JUST LIKE A DOLL'S KITCHEN AN' YOU WAS PLAYIN' A GAME
HA, HA, — THAT'S THE FUNNIEST THING I'VE HEARD SINCE HECTOR WAS A PUP! ME IN A DOLL HOUSE — PLAYIN' A GAME — !!
I DIDN'T MEAN YOU WAS REALLY PLAYIN'—
NO, YOUNGSTER — I'M NOT PLAYIN' A GAME! ANYTIME YOU HAVE TO COOK FOR THE CREW OF HUNGRY WOLVES ON THIS SCOW, YOU'RE NOT PLAYIN' — YOU'RE WORKIN' HARD ENOUGH TO GIVE A PLOW HORSE A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN
DARRELL McCLURE
GEE, MR DUFF, I DIDN'T MEAN TO HURT YOUR FEELINGS — AN' IF YOU'LL LET ME, I'LL HELP WASH THE DISHES —
NOW, DON'T WORRY — YOU WOULDN'T HURT THE FEELINGS OF A FLY — WAIT TILL YOU SEE THE LITTLE CAKE I MADE FOR YOU
GEE ZERO — BUT THE OCEAN'S GRAND? THE STARS ARE SO BRIGHT AN' THE MOON LOOKS JUST LIKE A GREAT, BIG PUMPKIN
THERE'S NO NOISE AT ALL — THE WIND IS WHISPERING SOFT LIKE IT WAS TELLIN' SOME KIND OF A SECRET AN' THE WATER IS HUMMING WHAT MRS JIM CALLS A LULLABY — WHILE THE LITTLE WAVES ARE ROCKIN' THE SHIP TO SLEEP
NO MATTER WHICH WAY YOU LOOK YOU CAN'T SEE ANYTHING BUT LOTS AN' LOTSA WATER — AN' LOTS AN' LOTSA STARS — IT MAKES YOU FEEL SMALLER THAN YOU ARE — JUST LIKE YOU WAS SOME KIND OF A TINY LITTLE BABY FLY — ALL ALONE IN THE MIDDLE OF A GREAT BIG BEAUTIFUL CHURCH
DARRELL McCLURE
IT'S EASY TO SEE YOU ARE A REAL SAILOR — SOME PEOPLE RUSH BELOW AT THE VERY THOUGHT OF ROUGH WEATHER — BUT YOU ENJOY IT
GEE, I DIDN'T KNOW IT WAS ROUGH WEATHER — I THOUGHT THE WAVES WERE JUST HAVIN' FUN PLAYIN' A GAME OF TAG OR SOMETHIN'
'COURSE, THE SUN'S NOT SHININ' LIKE IT WAS YESTERDAY — BUT THE WINDS SMELL NICE AN' FRESH AN' FISHY — I LIKE IT AN' ZERO LIKES IT — JUST LOOK AT THE WAY HE RUNS AROUND HAVIN' FUN — CHASIN' THE WIND LIKE HE THOUGHT IT WAS A CAT — MR DUFF, THE COOK, SEZ HIM AN' ME AN' ZERO ARE JUST THREE OLD SEA DOGS!
DARRELL McCLURE
HURRY UP, ZERO — RUN LIKE EVERYTHING — TODAY IS THE LAST DAY WE KIN STAY ON THE OCEAN —
CAPTAIN JIM SEZ TOMORROW WE'RE GOIN' TO DROP THE ANCHOR IN HIS PORT AN' GO LIVE ON SHORE AGAIN
I WAS TOO DUMB TO KNOW WHAT AN ANCHOR WAS AN' CAPTAIN JIM SHOWED ME — IT'S A TERRIBLE BIG HEAVY IRON HOOK — YOU DROP IT IN THE WATER AN' IT LOCKS THE SHIP TO THE BOTTOM OF THE OCEAN —
DARRELL McCLURE
AN' THE SHIP STAYS RIGHT WHERE YOU PUT IT — AN' IF YOU WANNA GO SOME PLACE YOU JUST PULL UP THE ANCHOR AN' SAIL AWAY — I THINK SAILORS ARE AWFUL SMART — DON'T YOU?

INSPECTOR WADE

WAIT, SPIDER!
WELL, TANYA- WHAT IS IT NOW?
WHY NOT WAIT TILL HE IS CONSCIOUS? PERHAPS HE CAN TELL US THINGS WE WANT TO KNOW... PERHAPS HE IS NOT ALONE.... PERHAPS....
OR PERHAPS YOU HAVE FALLEN IN LOVE WITH HIM, BECAUSE HE IS SO HANDSOME! GET OUT OF THE WAY!
PUT HIM DOWN OR I'LL SHOOT YOU, SPIDER!
SO--YOU HAVE FALLEN IN LOVE WITH INSPECTOR WADE!
YOU CAN'T KILL A MAN WHEN HE'S UNCONSCIOUS!
BAH! WHAT DOES IT MATTER WHETHER HE GOES TO HIS DEATH KNOWINGLY OR NOT? HE DIES, ANYWAY!
ENOUGH! DO AS I SAY- PUT HIM DOWN OR I SHOOT!
IN THAT CASE.....
NOW, TANYA! IF YOU SHOOT YOU WILL HIT YOUR PRECIOUS INSPECTOR WADE!
BEFORE TANYA REALIZES IT, WADE'S BODY FORMS A SHIELD FOR THE FOREIGN SPY...
YOU DARE NOT SHOOT--- YOU WOULD HIT HIM!
PUT HIM DOWN! YOU CANNOT HANG HIM!
A-ANOTHER STEP AND I SHOOT FOR YOUR H-HEAD!
YOUR HAND IS SHAKING LIKE A LEAF--- YOU DON'T DARE PULL THE TRIGGER-- YOU ARE AFRAID OF HITTING HIM!
BUT I AM NOT AFRAID OF HITTING YOU!... I'LL TAKE THAT GUN NOW!
MY WRIST-- YOU HURT IT!
YOU ARE LUCKY IT IS NOT BROKEN! YOUR LITTLE ATTEMPT TO SAVE WADE FROM HANGING MAY COST YOUR LIFE!
5-1
IF YOU STOP THIS NONSENSE, I SHALL BE LENIENT!
ARE YOU GOING TO HELP ME HANG INSPECTOR WADE?
NO! NO, I WILL NOT HELP!
THEN I SHALL TIE YOU UP! LATER, AFTER I HAVE FINISHED OFF WADE I SHALL SEE THAT YOU GET THE PUNISHMENT YOU DESERVE!
NOW, TANYA, YOU SHALL WATCH---
WHILE I SLIDE INSPECTOR WADE OUT OF THE WINDOW....
ONE MORE PUSH-- LIKE THIS!...
..AND INSPECTOR WADE HANGS AT THE END OF A ROPE!
TANYA'S EYES GROW BIG WITH HORROR... ...THAT SWINGING ROPE MEANS THAT INSPECTOR WADE IS- DEAD!
5-3
BUT TANYA IS WRONG! AS HE FALLS, WADE REACHES OUT!
THAT FRESH AIR BROUGT ME TO JUST IN TIME! AND IF THERE HADN'T BEEN SOMETHING TO GRAB-- I'D BE SWINGING ON THAT ROPE WITH A BROKEN NECK-- INSTEAD OF PAYING A REPEAT CALL ON THE SPIDER!

TOOTS AND CASPER

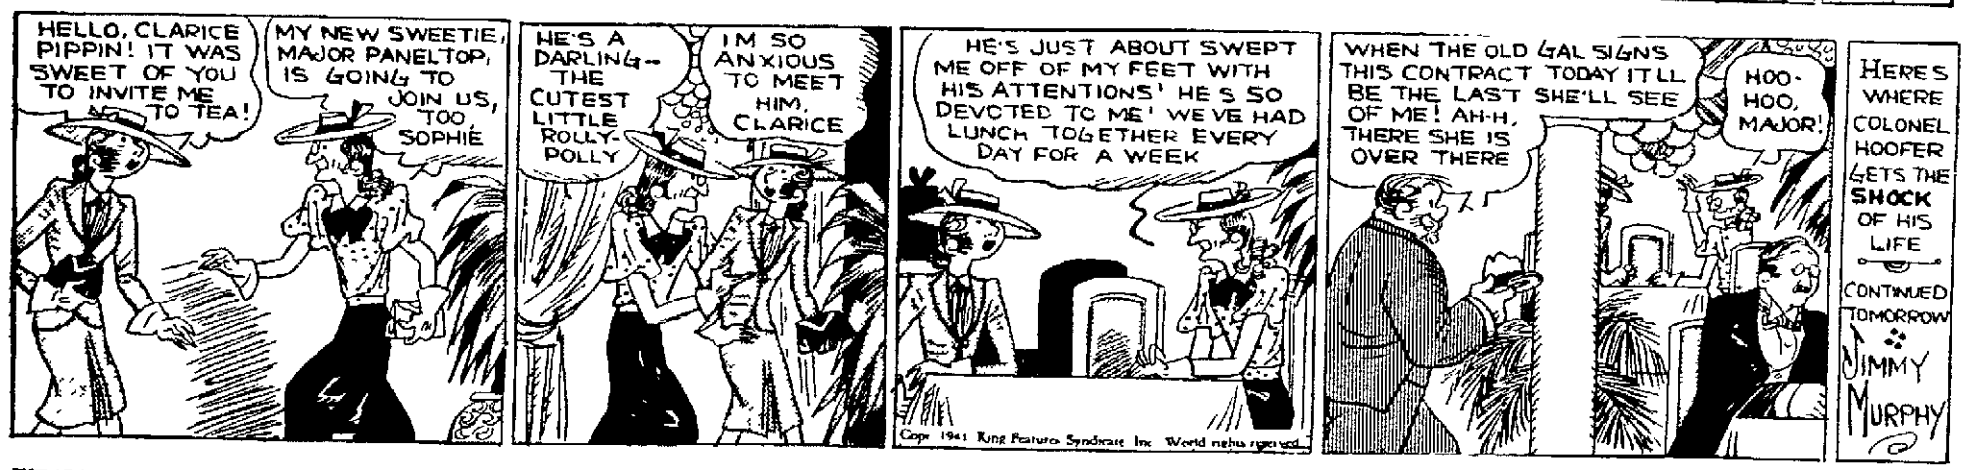
BYE-BYE, SOPHIE! I'VE GOT TO KEEP AN IMPORTANT ENGAGEMENT
I'VE A DATE, MYSELF, THIS AFTERNOON COLONEL! SEE YOU AT DINNER-TIME
MISS CLARICE PIPPIN IS AN OLD FRIEND OF MINE · SHE INVITED ME FOR TEA THIS AFTERNOON TO MEET HER NEW GENTLEMAN FRIEND!
I'LL PAY YOU $50,000.00 IF YOU LAND THAT ORDER, COLONEL HOOFER!
BOSS, I'M HAVING TEA AT 3 P.M. WITH MISS PIPPIN AND SOME LADY FRIEND OF HERS, AND I'LL GET THE CONTRACT SIGNED BEFORE I LEAVE 'EM.
4-28
HERE'S WHERE COL. HOOFER WILL BE INTRODUCED TO HIS OWN WIFE, AS THE SWEETIE OF ANOTHER WOMAN
JIMMY MURPHY



HELLO, CLARICE PIPPIN! IT WAS SWEET OF YOU TO INVITE ME TO TEA!
MY NEW SWEETIE, MAJOR PANELTOP, IS GOING TO JOIN US, TOO, SOPHIE
HE'S A DARLING— THE CUTEST LITTLE ROLLY-POLLY
I'M SO ANXIOUS TO MEET HIM, CLARICE
HE'S JUST ABOUT SWEPT ME OFF OF MY FEET WITH HIS ATTENTIONS! HE'S SO DEVOTED TO ME! WE'VE HAD LUNCH TOGETHER EVERY DAY FOR A WEEK
WHEN THE OLD GAL SIGNS THIS CONTRACT TODAY IT'LL BE THE LAST SHE'LL SEE OF ME! AH-H, THERE SHE IS OVER THERE HOO-HOO, MAJOR!
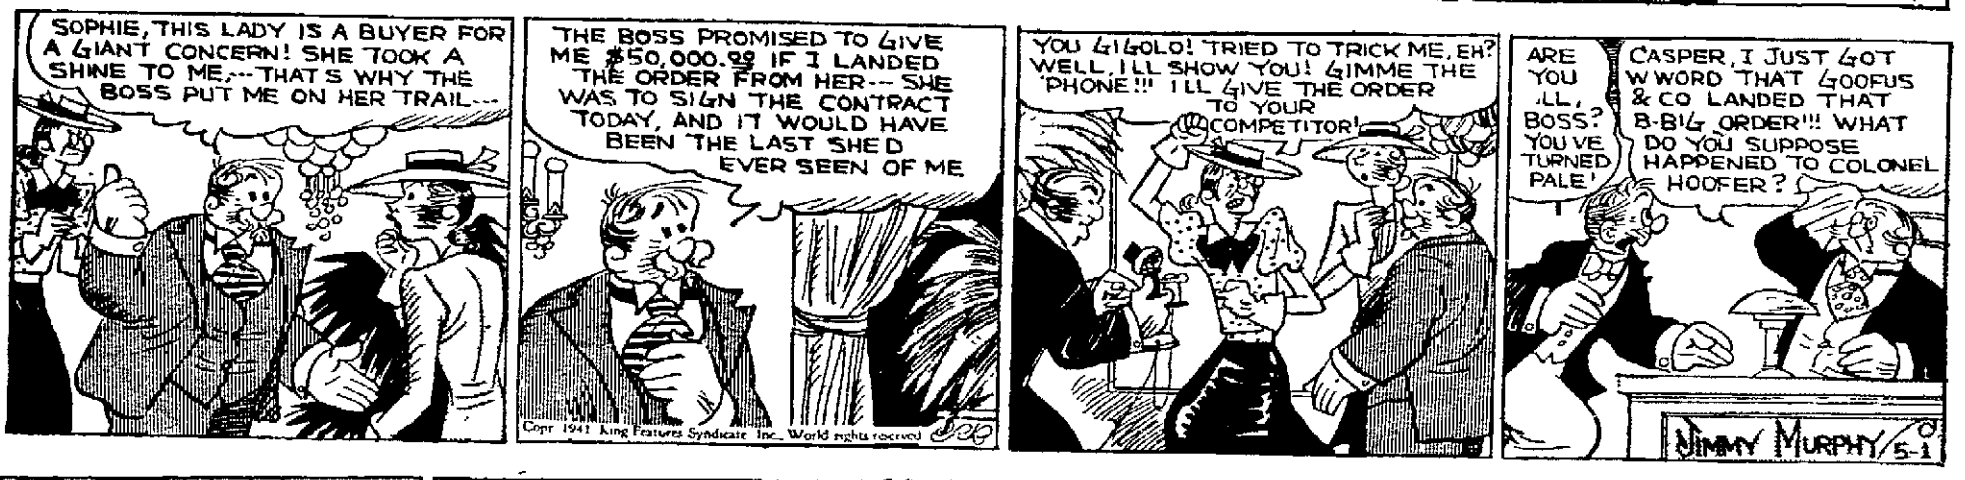
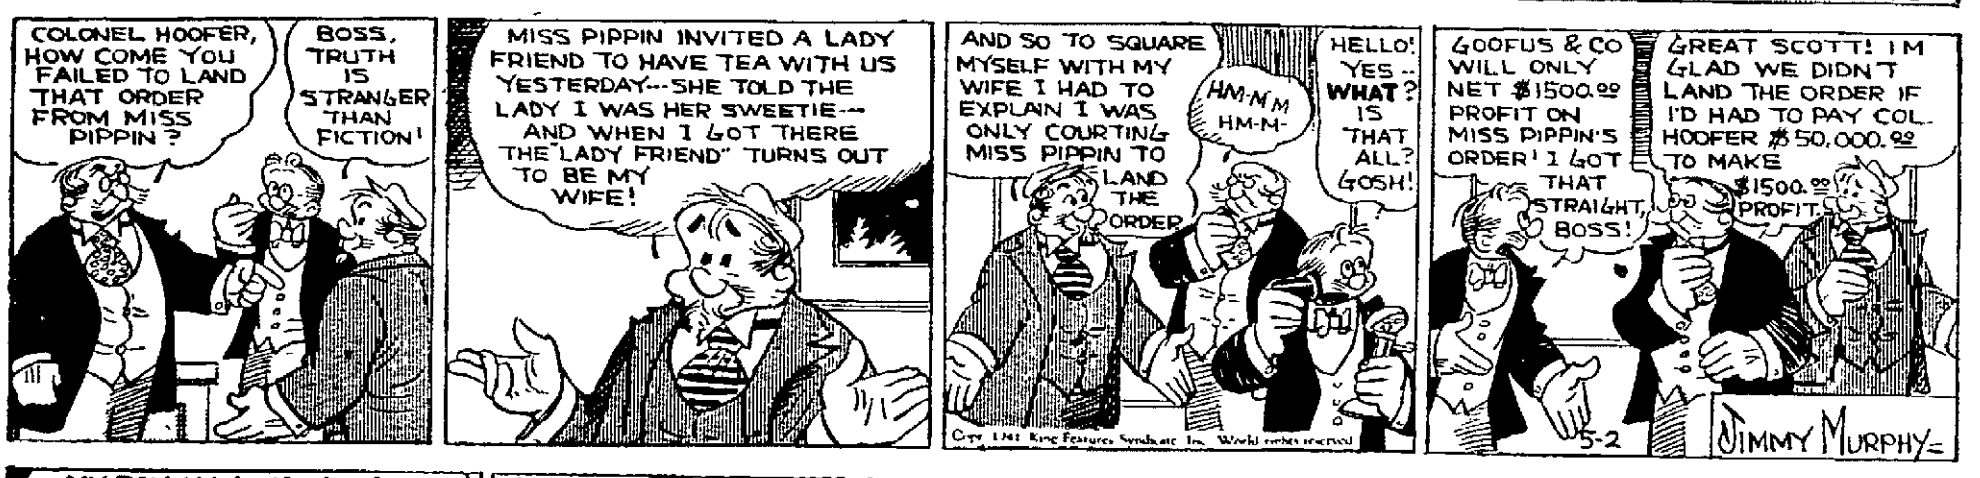
CONTINUED TOMORROW
JIMMY MURPHY

MRS. HOOFER, THIS IS MY GENTLEMAN FRIEND, MAJOR PANELTOP!
IS THIS THE MAN WHOSE BEEN KEEPING YOU COMPANY?
YES, THAT'S HIM, SOPHIE! ISN'T HE A DARLING?
DO YOU KNOW HIM, SOPHIE
SLIGHTLY! HE'S MY HUSBAND! HIS NAME IS COLONEL HOOFER, NOT MAJOR PANELTOP!
SOPHIE, PLEASE LISTEN— I CAN EXPLAIN!
WELL, EXPLAIN QUICK, YOU TWO-TIMER, OR IT WILL BE TOO LATE!
JIMMY MURPHY



SOPHIE, THIS LADY IS A BUYER FOR A GIANT CONCERN! SHE TOOK A SHINE TO ME,— THAT'S WHY THE BOSS PUT ME ON HER TRAIL—
THE BOSS PROMISED TO GIVE ME $50,000.00 IF I LANDED THE ORDER FROM HER— SHE WAS TO SIGN THE CONTRACT TODAY, AND IT WOULD HAVE BEEN THE LAST SHE'D EVER SEEN OF ME
YOU GIGOLO! TRIED TO TRICK ME, EH? WELL, I'LL SHOW YOU! GIMME THE 'PHONE!!! I'LL GIVE THE ORDER TO YOUR COMPETITOR!
ARE YOU ILL, BOSS? YOU'VE TURNED PALE!
CASPER, I JUST GOT WWORD THAT GOOFUS & CO LANDED THAT B-BIG ORDER!!! WHAT DO YOU SUPPOSE HAPPENED TO COLONEL HOOFER?
JIMMY MURPHY 5-1



COLONEL HOOFER, HOW COME YOU FAILED TO LAND THAT ORDER FROM MISS PIPPIN?
BOSS, TRUTH IS STRANGER THAN FICTION!
MISS PIPPIN INVITED A LADY FRIEND TO HAVE TEA WITH US YESTERDAY— SHE TOLD THE LADY I WAS HER SWEETIE— AND WHEN I GOT THERE THE "LADY FRIEND" TURNS OUT TO BE MY WIFE!
AND SO TO SQUARE MYSELF WITH MY WIFE I HAD TO EXPLAIN I WAS ONLY COURTING MISS PIPPIN TO LAND THE ORDER
HM-M-M HM-M-
HELLO! YES— WHAT? IS THAT ALL? GOSH!
GOOFUS & CO WILL ONLY NET $1500.00 PROFIT ON MISS PIPPIN'S ORDER! I GOT THAT STRAIGHT, BOSS!
GREAT SCOTT! I'M GLAD WE DIDN'T LAND THE ORDER IF I'D HAD TO PAY COL. HOOFER $50,000.00 TO MAKE $1500.00 PROFIT!
JIMMY MURPHY

MY BOY, I'M GLAD YOU DIDN'T LAND THAT ORDER— I COULDN'T VERY WELL AFFORD TO PAY YOU A $50,000.00 BONUS FOR AN ORDER THAT ONLY NETTED ME $1500.00 PROFIT!
YOU GOT OFF EASY, COLONEL HOOFER.
YES, THANK HEAVENS I'VE HEARD THE LAST OF IT, CASPER.
WHY DIDN'T YOU TELL ME YOU WERE TO GET $50,000.00 FOR LANDING THAT ORDER?
I THOUGHT YOU'D BE MAD, SOPHIE! I INTENDED TO TELL YOU LATER ON!
I COULD HAVE HAD A NEW HOME— NEW FURNITURE— NEW CLOTHES!!! WHY, I'D HAVE SOLD YOU TO HER FOR HALF OF $50,000.00
ON SECOND THOUGHT, I GUESS I'LL NEVER HEAR THE LAST OF THIS!
JIMMY MURPHY

IF IT HAPPENS LATE SATURDAY OR EARLY SUNDAY MORNING

It Will Be In The Sunday Edition of News-Journal

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Gossip In Gotham.

The Cary Grant-Barbara Hutton idyll is having Carole Landis trouble. . . . Virginia Moore (the beauty whose marriage to artist McClelland Barclay was announced and then denied) will elope with Lieut. William Harrison of the Air Corps.

Dorothy Kilgallen

Lucky Luciano has been in and out of solitary confinement like a jack-in-the-box these past few weeks because of brawls with fellow inmates. . . . Intimates say the Richard Arlens (Jobyna Ralston), who have been separated a long time, are ready to divorce.

Lord Cavendish (Adele Astaire's husband) is reported ailing. . . . Gene Markey and Kay Sutton, the former "DuBarry" showgirl, are a heart toddy.

Vera Gilmer, the front-cover Conover girl, says her real romance is Robert Nash, of "Meet the People," although Greg Bautzer and others are bothering her. . . . Jack Dempsey, who rejected a $100,000 offer to tour South America in exhibition bouts with Louis Firpo, will probably go there anyway—as a Good Will ambassador from the U. S.

Tommy Manville will "angel" Georgie Jessel's scheduled musical, "The High Kick." (Tommy, incidentally, has switched from Honeychile Wilder to Beverly Paterno, her sparring partner.

Lenore Lemmon's family is packing her off to Virginia as a result of her latest flurry of publicity. Don't they think there are any newspapers in Virginny? . . . John L. Lewis is on the verge of forming a new third party.

The Bill Conselman, jrs. (she's Jacqueline Dahlia, the N. Y. showgirl who became a Hollywood starlet) have parted after a marriage of less than six months.

Gold Stars: To Don Loper and Maxine Barrat, the dancers at the Copacabana. . . . Harry James' exciting band at the Lincoln Blue room. . . . Gracie McDonald's terpsichore at the Versailles. . . . Paul Gallico's wonderfully-worded story, "The Snow Goose," which you should read. . . . Brenda Forbes' comic touches at the Ruban Bleu. . . . Sunny Tufts' warbling of "You Walked By" at the Glass Hat. . . . the strawberry short cake at Toffenetti's. . . . Jimmy Flora's engagement tunes at the Pennsylvania's cocktail lounge. . . . Paul Lukas' perfect performance in "Watch on the Rhine."

Ethel Merman gets this week's whimsy prize. She was strolling on Fifth ave., the other evening, out for a breath of ozone, when she approached a Western Union messenger boy. In a burst of turn-about-is-fair-play spirit, she grabbed him, made him halt, and sang "Happy Birthday to You" to him!

Romo Vincent, the plump comedian, will marry Mildred "Mickey" Hamilton, the radio actress, in Boston. . . . Charlie Barnet and Marie McDonald, the singer, have called it a day. She has quit his band and transferred her affections to the president of an aeronautics firm.

George Miller, who used to be Martha Raye's sweetie-pie, and Joanne Marshal, who was Al Jolson's ditto, are a new softening of the hearteries case. . . . The F. B. I. is considering changing the entrance requirements for G-Men.

Three million dollars will be spent converting the S. S. Manhattan into a troop ship. . . . They say Jack Teagarden turns out to be a comedian in scenes with Bing Crosby for "Birth of the Blues". . . . Television will be piped into a theater for the first time on May 9 at the New Yorker.

Katharine Hepburn and Garson Kanin are on the telephone again. Revival? . . . The glitter set's favorite line these evenings is the one describing that national magazine: Arsenic and Old Luce!

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Return of Gloria Swanson to the movies makes us think, a little sadly, of the days that were when glamour was a trade and a gal had time to work at it.

There's nobody in this modern Hollywood to take the place of the old-time Swanson—unless it's Gloria herself, who looks like a couple of million but is scarcely likely to bother about such foolishness.

ROBBIN COONS

Gloria is playing the smart but matronly wife of Adolphe Menjou in "Father Takes a Wife," but apparently she isn't planning to stick to the movies as a steady thing. She'll be generously decked in finery contrived by designer Rene Hubert, as "Father" is a rich wife-taker—and of course in private life she continues her old-time fondness for style.

Gloria, in her DeMille days and after, always fancied herself as a pace-setter in the clothes ring, which she was. Some of her garb of that era has a bizarre quality today even beyond the normal wackiness occasioned by perspective on fashion's changing moods. But the gals of the nation always seemed to love it, and so did Gloria.

MARLENE DIETRICH today is our nearest approach to the complete movie star once typified by Swanson—a star who wears the trappings of glamour as though born to them and makes a career of the wearing.

But Marlene is a busy gal, and most of the working stars of today's Hollywood are busy, too. Dialogue to study, swifter production schedules, occasional radio turns, "outside" businesses, concert tours, benefit appearances are among the various time-takers for the Swansons—mostly unknown to the silent era of tempestuous "feuds" and flamboyant "temperament," of pink-lavender automobiles and Hollywood-Roman baths.

This is not to imply that all our cuties are too, too busy to toss an occasional tantrum or bare an occasional kittenish claw. But studios are less tolerant than they used to be, and generally insist that "temperament" be exercised on the artist's own time. A gal has to be just plain ornery to go to that extreme.

Chatter Corner

(Just jottings about people you know, as they're seen here and there about town.)

Douglas Bacon cleaning up peanut shells he dropped on the floor at Boy Scout headquarters. . . . The group of Mansfielders at Ruggles Beach enjoying the opening of the summer season of dancing. . . . George Hoover chuckling over a Greek translation test. . . . Harold Burns making notes on a sheet of scrap paper. . . . C. G. Hiller returning a borrowed book to Boy Scout headquarters. . . . H. D. Bishop enjoying a pot-luck dinner at the Y. M. C. A.

Deputy Sheriffs C. C. Gongwer and Glenn Freeman trying to keep warm while on duty at the carnival grounds and wishing they had their winter jackets. . . . County Commissioner C. J. Mitchell reprimanding ... for mailing a letter without a name or address on it.

Herb Slough most expansive receiving congratulations and announcing that the recent new arrival at the Slough household has been named Timothy Ward Slough. . . . Dora McLeod, primary supervisor in Mansfield schools and Harriet Kerr, elementary supervisor in Ashland schools leaving to attend the spring meeting of Ohio school supervisors and directors in Columbus.

THROWN 30 FEET, KILLED

COLUMBUS—(AP)—William E. Gee, 32, Bexley was killed early today when his automobile collided with a truck near Chillicothe. His body was found in a field 30 feet from his automobile.

Takes Medicine For Heart, Then Takes Diamonds

COLUMBUS—(INS)—A dragnet was thrown around Columbus today for two smooth-working jewelry thieves, one of whom shared a potion of heart medicine with the victim before trussing him up and fleeing in a downtown hotel and escaping with $35,000 in diamonds.

Norman Garfield, 35, San Francisco salesman told police that one well-dressed bandit entered his room with a key, ordered him at gunpoint to lay face-down on the bed, and tied his hands and feet with neckties from Garfield's luggage.

"I told him I had heart-trouble," Garfield said, "and asked for a dose of my medicine. He replied that that's too bad; so have I. He got me a glass of water and the medicine, and we each took a portion."

[illegible] entered the room, pocketed the diamonds and fled. Garfield managed to free himself and called police.

OHIO SENATE PUT ON SPOT BY LABOR BILL

Lawmakers Must Make Up Minds on Compromise Measure by Monday.

COLUMBUS—The Ohio senate found itself on the spot today so far as organized labor is concerned. Between now and Monday night, when the lawmakers reconvene, they must make up their minds as to what they are going to do about the ticklish piece of legislative dynamite known as the Whittemore-Reiners bill.

Designed to make drastic and wholesale revisions in the state's unemployment compensation statutes, the bill is a document of 54 pages of highly complex, technical material, and a number of senators on both sides of the partisan fence have been frank enough to admit that after reading it through several times, they still had only a hazy idea as to what its provisions are intended to accomplish.

The bill has been offered to the senate as a compromise, growing out of weeks of public hearings before the commerce and labor committee on three separate measures, one of which was an administration attempt to bring the job insurance laws up to date, and bore the name of majority leader Frank E. Whittemore. A second, by Sen. Fred G. Reiners (R.-Cincinnati), reflected the views of employers, while the third, by Sen. Horace Keifer (R.-Springfield), admittedly presented labor's side of the case.

After weeks of delay, the bill was suddenly voted out of committee during a senate recess late Wednesday afternoon, and at a brief session yesterday morning, was brought up for passage.

Confusion in the minds of the senators as to how to vote on the measure was intensified after they heard Reiners laud it as a compromise that would liberalize benefits to the unemployed to the extent of more than $7,000,000 a year, while Keifer asserted with equal emphasis that any gains granted labor would be more than offset by features that would remove thousands of Ohio workers from all participation in the law.

FOUND DEAD

E. S. Homan, Business Man at Loudonville, Takes Life.

LOUDONVILLE — Dr. George Emery, Ashland county coroner, returned a suicide verdict today in the death of Edwin S. Homan, 63, a business man in Loudonville for more than 30 years, and a lifelong resident of the community.

Mr. Homan, whose body was found in a garage at the home on South Adams street this morning, had been in ill health, according to Dr. Emery. A pipe, connected to the exhaust of Mr. Homan's automobile, passed into the car through a window.

Survivors are his widow, Clara, and three sisters, Mrs. U. G. Church of Loudonville; Mrs. Charles Miller, of Greer, O.; and Mrs. Margaret Logsdon, of Danville, O.

Funeral services will be held at the Gilbert funeral home Monday at 2 p. m. Rev. G. H. Volpitto, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will officiate. Burial will be in Wesleyan chapel cemetery, near Greer.

DECLINES TO QUIT HIS POST

Election Board Member, 80, Declines to Resign Despite Request.

(By Associated Press)

PAULDING — An 80-year-old Paulding county election board member has refused to resign despite the nomination of his successor.

Two members of the board and the clerk were ousted by Secretary of State John Sweeney at the request of a county grand jury following an allegedly fraudulent recount and A. B. Moore was asked to retire because of his age.

Moore, however, indicated he would not comply with the request although a Republican committee nominated Burd Davis to succeed him.

The committee also named A. P. Gilbertto to replace Clifford Keck and a Democratic committee chose George Enz to succeed Chairman O. E. Ehrhart. William Russell, Democratic board member absolved by Sweeney, is the only incumbent.

The other ousted board official was Clerk Charles J. Price.

The jury investigation followed court action refusing an election certificate to Henry Green, Republican engineer candidate, on the ground that irregularities had been uncovered in a recount. The original Democratic winner, Daniel A. Stouffer, was awarded the office.

LASHES EXCESS TAXES IN OHIO

Bittinger Says Administration to Spend 'Untold Millions.'

COLUMBUS —(AP)— State Democratic Chairman J. Freer Bittinger asserted today that during the next two years the administration of Gov. John W. Bricker would spend "untold millions in excess taxes with the most lavish hand known in state history."

"The administration's legislative leaders," he declared in a statement, "turned mute ears on the proposed admendments offered by the Democratic minority which, had they been put through, would have brought material benefit to labor, old age pensioners, the farmer and the small home owner."

OPM SHOWS WAY ON PRODUCTION

Its Eight Mimeographs Turn Out Bales of Reports.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The office of production management, which is urging the nation to increase production, is leading the way with eight mimeograph machines.

The machines often operated 18 hours a day, each turning out 100 pages a minute of press releases, reports and other material relating to defense.

An expert statistician figured that would total 800 pages a minute, 48,000 an hour, $66,000 for an 18-hour day, 6,062,000 a week and 315,244,000 a year.

If blossoms mean apples, Richland county orchardists are going to have a big fruit crop this summer. Almost every apple tree in the Mansfield area that has any life left in it is virtually loaded down with bloom and motorists will find the blossom period at its peak this week-end in the county's rural areas. Cherry, plum, and pear blossoms, which are almost as numerous, are nearly gone now. Unless a late frost nips the young fruit, orchardists expect the crop to be much larger than last year.

Even city officials get "caught short" just before payday. Mayor William J. Locke today received a C. O. D. package at the municipal building but failed to have sufficient funds with him at the time. He had to borrow the necessary $5.08 from Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton. Auditor Paul Kelley said that the transaction would not be considered an official matter and that no special meeting of council would be called to make any necessary appropriation to repay Crafton.

BONDS SOLD

Mansfield Bank Successful Bidder on School Bonds.

The Plymouth school district's $47,500 worth of bonds for a new elementary school were sold last night to the Farmers Savings and Trust company, Mansfield, at two per cent interest and $232.50 premium.

Other bidders included the Farmers State bank at New Washington which asked two per cent interest and offered a $5 premium, and Seasongood and Mayer, Toledo, at two and a fourth per cent interest and $1,000 premium.

The bonds, which represent the school district's share of the cost of the new $77,500 building, will be payable over a 25-year period. The federal government is contributing $30,000 in labor.

National Youth administration workers are already razing the old building to make room for the new school. Work on the structure is expected to start this spring as soon as the old building debris is cleared away.

TAFT ASSERTS PRESIDENT IN POWER GRAB

Declares Complete Confusion Exists Among Various Federal Bureaus.

SPRINGFIELD— (AP) —Republican Sen. Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati charges the Roosevelt administration with incompetence and says that "the method by which the president is undertaking to fix prices is the most outrageous power grab which this country has ever seen."

"The fixing of prices is bound to lead to the fixing of profits," he said last night at a Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting. "Ultimately it must lead to the fixing of wages."

Taft said that while "I believe that some such powers are justified by the tremendous defense program and the tremendous amount of money the government must borrow, at present in this field there is a complete confusion among government bureaus."

In addition to the federal reserve board, the treasury department, the agricultural department, the community credit corporation and the justice department, all seeking to control price levels, the president has named Leon Henderson to head the price administration and civilian supply—an agency never authorized by congress, the senator said.

"This is a substantial step toward that government by executive order which now exists in Germany and Italy," Taft declared.

Taft contended the administration was attempting "to use the defense crisis as a basis for usurping powers congress never has been willing to give by law, to regulate everything and everybody."

Of Harry Hopkins' appointment to direct the lease-lend program, Taft said:

"Any administration which takes away the administration of the $7,000,000,000 lease-lend program from (William S.) Knudsen and gives it to Harry Hopkins brands itself as completely incompetent and inefficient."

Taft said that the various new agencies to deal with defense production, labor relations and fiscal matters present "a picture of a new bureaucracy, completely under the president's direction, superimposed on the complicated bureaucratic setup already created by congress."

Senior High Girls Stage Play Day At Stadium Today

Approximately 250 Mansfield Senior high school girls took part in a "Nautical Play Day" at the high school stadium today. The program, which began in the morning, was sponsored by the Girls' Athletic association.

The girls, divided into 16 teams, took part in eight rounds of sports during the morning. Games played were volleyball, deck tennis, challenges, badminton, baseball, dodgeball, kick-pin ball, and line soccer.

The girls were served lunch in the school cafeteria at noon.

The 16 teams then gave original skits, prepared by members of each group, in the school auditorium after lunch. Prizes were awarded to championship teams for morning and afternoon performances.

Ruth Sawyer was general chairman in charge of the program, G. A. A. advisor is Wilma Snider, director of girls' physical education.

sity. The great waterfront area and various industrial targets were reported severely bombed and burned.

The British heavily bombed the German ports of Hamburg, Bremen, Emden, and also attacked Rotterdam, reporting that they had caused much destruction.

Assert Iraq Troops Attack New Airdrome

NEW YORK—(AP)—A German wireless report from Turkey said today that Iraq troops had attacked the British airdrome at Sindebane, besides the one at Habbaniyah.

A broadcast of what was said to be an Iraq communique also said 30 tons of bombs had been dropped on Habbaniyah, while a British attempt to occupy the stronghold of Rutbah and the Rutbah airdrome with mechanized forces was frustrated.

Ambassador Says All Quiet in Baghdad

LONDON —(AP)— Sir Kinahan Cornwallis, British ambassador to Iraq, reported to London today that "all is quiet in Baghdad."

"While the situation there is tense, no incident has so far occurred," an official announcement said.

(German broadcasts reported the chasing of Sir Kinahan back into the embassy by a crowd of Iraqis who objected, the radio said to his distributing British propaganda leaflets in the Iraq capital. The broadcasts also reported the arrest of many British.)

Nazis Claim Sinking Of Million Tons

BERLIN—(INS)—The staggering total of 1,000,211 tons of British shipping was sunk during April, the German high command reported today.

Of this amount, about 400,000 tons were sunk in Greek waters by German planes blasting at transports evacuating British troops from Greece. About 250 other ships were badly damaged, many of which must be considered a total loss, according to the communique.

The figures were exclusive of ships sunk or damaged by striking mines.

Last night's raid on the Merseyside district of Liverpool caused "extensive fires and serious explosions," the communique claimed.

In North Africa, Nazi troops have penetrated deep beyond the outer defense of Tobruk, capturing a considerable number of pillboxes and several hundred prisoners despite stiff British resistance.

tributions. Many prospects had asked solicitors to return for cash and pledges today, he said.

Reports today show $19,877.45 still needed before the goal is reached.

Clean-up squads will be organized Tuesday within each division, Rev. Roller said and these workers will contact prospects not previously reached by solicitors. Each major will have charge of organizing his or her own squad and the prospects will be contacted by new solicitors.

Monday's report luncheon will be held at the Y. M. C. A. and majors were urged by Rev. Roller to have their reports as complete as possible.

The drive to raise funds for 11 participating agencies ends Wednesday.

REPORT SINKING

Maritime Sources Indicate Freighter Intercepted.

NEW YORK —(AP)— The 3,298-ton German freighter Lech which left Rio De Janeiro five days ago in an attempt to run the British blockade was intercepted yesterday by a British auxiliary cruiser and was reported sinking off Bahia, Brazil, maritime sources said today.

No other details were available here. The information that the ship was sinking indicated she was scuttled by her crew.

The Lech, a North German Lloyd ship built at Bremen in 1939, arrived at Rio De Janeiro on March 3, with an airplane and chemical products for Brazil. Capt. Frederich Brinkmann said then the Lech would remain until the end of the war and that the arrival proved that "Germany delivers the goods."

Revival Meetings To Be Concluded

Revival services which have been conducted at the Pilgrim church, 322 Harker street, during past weeks by Marie Tschappat, evangelist, assisted by Iada Burris, will close with the Saturday and Sunday evening services.

Lesson-Sermon Topic Announced

"Everlasting Punishment" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in the Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

The Golden Text is: "He that covereth his sins shall not prosper: but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy" (Proverbs 28:13).

Among the citations which comprice the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Be not deceived: God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. . . . For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting" (Galatians 6:7,8).

Begin Series of Revival Services

Rev. and Mrs. Ellis Teasdale will begin a series of revival services at the Church of the Nazarene, Reba avenue at 7:30 p. m., Tuesday.

The Teasdales are evangelistists and singers of Jamestown, N. Y. They feature 12 musical instruments, and will be heard nightly through Sunday, May 18.

Besides their vocal numbers they will play selections on their vibraharp and cathedral chimes. They will alternate in preaching and will open each service at 7:30 p. m. with 15 minutes of music.

'What Think Ye of Christ?', Topic

Rev. Peter Young, pastor, will preach on "What Think Ye of Christ?" at the worship service of the First Congregational church at 10:45 a. m. Sunday.

The choir, under the direction of A. LeMoine Derr, will sing "Then Round about the Starry Throne" by Handel; Bentley Ford will sing as offertory solo, "If God So Clothe the Grass" by Bischoff. Mrs. Fred Lewis, organist, will play "Adagio Molto" by Guilmant and "Postlude in D" by Tours.

A group of young people from the church will attend the Central North Pilgrim Fellowship at Bellevue Sunday.

Dr. Fonkalsrud To Be Guest Pastor

Sunday morning at the First Christian church Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud will occupy the pulpit in the absence of Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger who is attending the international convention of Christian churches in St. Louis.

Mrs. H. H. Clingan, organist, will play "May Night" by Palmgren, "Idyll" by Goss-Custard and "March in C" by Teilmann, the choir will sing "Jerusalem, O Turn Thee" by Gounod. The Women's Missionary society will meet Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. George Harmon and Mrs. E. E. Teeter in charge.

Missionary Field Day To Be Observed

Missionary field day will be observed at the South Main Evangelical church at the service at 10:30 a. m. Sunday. Rev Woodrow Faulkner, of Butler, will speak at both the morning and evening services.

A mothers' and daughters' banquet will be held Friday at 6:30 p. m.

of American airplanes by July would exceed the British supply of air personnel.

"If Great Britain is to use the full volume of American production," this congressman said, "one thing is certain—Americans will be serving in ground crews and other capacities."

Says Public Opinion Holds Up Convoys

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A charge that the administration "wants to use convoys" but is being deterred by public opinion was voiced today by Senator Tobey (R-NH) as friends disclosed that Senator Pepper (D-Fla) would advocate in the senate Monday that the navy guard war shipments to Britain.

Pepper's projected speech, following closely a plea for convoys delivered in the senate Thursday by Senator Guffey (D-Pa), led Tobey to observe to reporters that the administration appeared to be attempting to pave the way for such a program.

"All this," said Tobey, "lends additional support to my thesis that the administration wants to use convoys but is being prevented from doing so because of public opinion."

He said he regarded Guffey's speech as a "trial balloon," likely to be followed by even more aggressive utterances from Pepper.

Both Pepper and Guffey have been supporters of President Roosevelt's program of aiding Britain, but administration leaders denied they had any advance knowledge of Guffey's speech. Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky said he learned of Guffey's plans to speak only a few minutes before the latter took the floor.

Some other quarters, however, regarded the Guffey and Pepper speeches as part of a concerted campaign by convoy advocates to offset charges made by Senators Wheeler (D-Mont), Clark (D-Mo), Nyr (R-ND) and others in speaking tours that convoys would lead to involvement in war.

Britain, U. S. Ease Pressure on Eire

LONDON —(AP)— Britain and the United States were said reliably today to be easing pressure on Eire for bases and to be concentrating on a new plan for streamlined convoys to win the battle of the Atlantic.

An American source with good opportunities for an objective picture of the whole war situation described the British position at the moment as "pretty grim."

"You must remember," he said, "that these are a proud people who would be reluctant to admit any possibility of defeat even though it were imminent when attempting to assess the importance of our help in the battle of the Atlantic."

Need for quick aid is so urgent, he added, that even if the Irish decided to turn over their bases the machinery might be so cumbersome they would be of little immediate advantage.

Britain's greatest need, he declared, is swift institution of a system of organized convoys under close cooperation of the British and United States navies.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Return of Gloria Swanson to the movies makes us think, a little sadly, of the days that were when glamour was a trade and a gal had time to work at it.

There's nobody in this modern Hollywood to take the place of the old-time Swanson—unless it's Gloria herself, who looks like a couple of million but is scarcely likely to bother about such foolishness.

ROBBIN COONS

Gloria is playing the smart but matronly wife of Adolphe Menjou in "Father Takes a Wife," but apparently she isn't planning to stick to the movies as a steady thing. She'll be generously decked in finery contrived by designer Rene Hubert, as "Father" is a rich wife-taker—and of course in private life she continues her old-time fondness for style.

Gloria, in her DeMille days and after, always fancied herself as a pace-setter in the clothes ring, which she was. Some of her garb of that era has a bizarre quality today even beyond the normal wackiness occasioned by perspective on fashion's changing moods. But the gals of the nation always seemed to love it, and so did Gloria.

MARLENE DIETRICH today is our nearest approach to the complete movie star once typified by Swanson—a star who wears the trappings of glamour as though born to them and makes a career of the wearing.

But Marlene is a busy gal, and most of the working stars of today's Hollywood are busy, too. Dialogue to study, swifter production schedules, occasional radio turns, "outside" businesses, concert tours, benefit appearances are among the various time-takers for the Swansons—mostly unknown to the silent era of tempestuous "feuds" and flamboyant "temperament," of pink-lavender automobiles and Hollywood-Roman baths.

This is not to imply that all our cuties are too, too busy to toss an occasional tantrum or bare an occasional kittenish claw. But studios are less tolerant than they used to be, and generally insist that "temperament" be exercised on the artist's own time. A gal has to be just plain ornery to go to that extreme.

Takes Medicine For Heart, Then Takes Diamonds

COLUMBUS—(INS)—A dragnet was thrown around Columbus today for two smooth-working cavalry thieves, one of whom stole a dozen of heart medicine with the victim before trussing him up in a downtown hotel and escaping with $35,000 in diamonds.

Sherman Garfield, 35, San Francisco salesman, told police that one well-dressed bandit entered his room at the Deshler hotel, ordered him at gunpoint to lay face-down on the bed, and tied his hands and feet with neckties from Garfield's own

"I told him I had heart-trouble," Garfield said, "and asked for a dose of my medicine. He replied that that's two had to have. He got me a glass of water and the medicine and we each took a portion."

[illegible] brief search of the room, [illegible] the luggage, took only the diamonds and fled. Garfield immediately went to free himself and called police.

OHIO SENATE PUT ON SPOT BY LABOR BILL

Lawmakers Must Make Up Minds on Compromise Measure by Monday.

COLUMBUS—The Ohio senate found itself on the spot today so far as organized labor is concerned. Between now and Monday night, when the lawmakers reconvene, they must make up their minds as to what they are going to do about the ticklish piece of legislative dynamite known as the Whittemore-Reiners bill.

Designed to make drastic and wholesale revisions in the state's unemployment compensation statutes, the bill is a document of 54 pages of highly complex, technical material, and a number of senators on both sides of the partisan fence have been frank enough to admit that after reading it through several times, they still had only a hazy idea as to what its provisions are intended to accomplish.

The bill has been offered to the senate as a compromise, growing out of weeks of public hearings before the commerce and labor committee on three separate measures, one of which was an administration attempt to bring the job insurance laws up to date, and bore the name of majority leader Frank E. Whittemore. A second, by Sen. Fred G. Reiners (R.-Cincinnati), reflected the views of employers, while the third, by Sen. Horace Keifer (R.-Springfield), admittedly presented labor's side of the case.

After weeks of delay, the bill was suddenly voted out of committee during a senate recess late Wednesday afternoon, and at a brief session yesterday morning, was brought up for passage.

Confusion in the minds of the senators as to how to vote on the measure was intensified after they heard Reiners laud it as a compromise that would liberalize benefits to the unemployed to the extent of more than $7,000,000 a year, while Keifer asserted with equal emphasis that any gains granted labor would be more than offset by features that would remove thousands of Ohio workers from all participation in the law.

FOUND DEAD

E. S. Homan, Business Man at Loudonville, Takes Life.

LOUDONVILLE — Dr. George Emery, Ashland county coroner, returned a suicide verdict today in the death of Edwin S. Homan, 63, a business man in Loudonville for more than 30 years, and a lifelong resident of the community.

Mr. Homan, whose body was found in a garage at the home on South Adams street this morning, had been in ill health, according to Dr. Emery. A pipe, connected to the exhaust of Mr. Homan's automobile, passed into the car through a window.

Survivors are his widow, Clara, and three sisters, Mrs. U. G. Church of Loudonville; Mrs. Charles Miller, of Greer, O.; and Mrs. Margaret Logsdon, of Danville, O.

Funeral services will be held at the Gilbert funeral home Monday at 2 p. m. Rev. G. H. Volpitto, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will officiate. Burial will be in Wesleyan chapel cemetery, near Greer.

DECLINES TO QUIT HIS POST

Election Board Member, 80, Declines to Resign Despite Request.

(By Associated Press)

PAULDING — An 80-year-old Paulding county election board member has refused to resign despite the nomination of his successor.

Two members of the board and the clerk were ousted by Secretary of State John Sweeney at the request of a county grand jury following an allegedly fraudulent recount and A. B. Moore was asked to retire because of his age.

Moore, however, indicated he would not comply with the request although a Republican committee nominated Burd Davis to succeed him.

The committee also named A. P. Gilbertto to replace Clifford Keck and a Democratic committee chose George Enz to succeed Chairman O. E. Ehrhart. William Russell, Democratic board member absolved by Sweeney, is the only incumbent.

The other ousted board official was Clerk Charles J. Price.

The jury investigation followed court action refusing an election certificate to Henry Green, Republican engineer candidate, on the ground that irregularities had been uncovered in a recount. The original Democratic winner, Daniel A. Stouffer, was awarded the office.

LASHES EXCESS TAXES IN OHIO

Bittinger Says Administration to Spend 'Untold Millions.'

COLUMBUS —(AP)— State Democratic Chairman J. Freer Bittinger asserted today that during the next two years the administration of Gov. John W. Bricker would spend "untold millions in excess taxes with the most lavish hand known in state history."

"The administration's legislative leaders," he declared in a statement, "turned mute ears on the proposed admendments offered by the Democratic minority which, had they been put through, would have brought material benefit to labor, old age pensioners, the farmer and the small home owner."

OPM SHOWS WAY ON PRODUCTION

Its Eight Mimeographs Turn Out Bales of Reports.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The office of production management, which is urging the nation to increase production, is leading the way with eight mimeograph machines.

The machines often operated 18 hours a day, each turning out 100 pages a minute of press releases, reports and other material relating to defense.

An expert statistician figured that would total 800 pages a minute, 48,000 an hour, 866,000 for an 18-hour day, 6,062,000 a week and 315,244,000 a year.

If blossoms mean apples, Richland county orchardists are going to have a big fruit crop this summer. Almost every apple tree in the Mansfield area that has any life left in it is virtually loaded down with bloom and motorists will find the blossom period at its peak this week-end in the county's rural areas. Cherry, plum, and pear blossoms, which are almost as numerous, are nearly gone now. Unless a late frost nips the young fruit, orchardists expect the crop to be much larger than last year.

Even city officials get "caught short" just before payday. Mayor William J. Locke today received a C. O. D. package at the municipal building but failed to have sufficient funds with him at the time. He had to borrow the necessary $5.08 from Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton. Auditor Paul Kelley said that the transaction would not be considered an official matter and that no special meeting of council would be called to make any necessary appropriation to repay Crafton.

BONDS SOLD

Mansfield Bank Successful Bidder on School Bonds.

The Plymouth school district's $47,500 worth of bonds for a new elementary school were sold last night to the Farmers Savings and Trust company, Mansfield, at two per cent interest and $232.50 premium.

Other bidders included the Farmers State bank at New Washington which asked two per cent interest and offered a $5 premium, and Seasongood and Mayer, Toledo, at two and a fourth per cent interest and $1,000 premium.

The bonds, which represent the school district's share of the cost of the new $77,500 building, will be payable over a 25-year period. The federal government is contributing $30,000 in labor.

National Youth administration workers are already razing the old building to make room for the new school. Work on the structure is expected to start this spring as soon as the old building debris is cleared away.

TAFT ASSERTS PRESIDENT IN POWER GRAB

Declares Complete Confusion Exists Among Various Federal Bureaus.

SPRINGFIELD— (AP) —Republican Sen. Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati charges the Roosevelt administration with incompetence and says that "the method by which the president is undertaking to fix prices is the most outrageous power grab which this country has ever seen."

"The fixing of prices is bound to lead to the fixing of profits," he said last night at a Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting. "Ultimately it must lead to the fixing of wages."

Taft said that while "I believe that some such powers are justified by the tremendous defense program and the tremendous amount of money the government must borrow, at present in this field there is a complete confusion among government bureaus."

In addition to the federal reserve board, the treasury department, the agricultural department, the community credit corporation and the justice department, all seeking to control price levels, the president has named Leon Henderson to head the price administration and civilian supply—an agency never authorized by congress, the senator said.

"This is a substantial step toward that government by executive order which now exists in Germany and Italy," Taft declared.

Taft contended the administration was attempting "to use the defense crisis as a basis for usurping powers congress never has been willing to give by law, to regulate everything and everybody."

Of Harry Hopkins' appointment to direct the lease-lend program, Taft said:

"Any administration which takes away the administration of the $7,000,000,000 lease-lend program from (William S.) Knudsen and gives it to Harry Hopkins brands itself as completely incompetent and inefficient."

Taft said that the various new agencies to deal with defense production, labor relations and fiscal matters present "a picture of a new bureaucracy, completely under the president's direction, superimposed on the complicated bureaucratic setup already created by congress."

Senior High Girls Stage Play Day At Stadium Today

Approximately 250 Mansfield Senior high school girls took part in a "Nautical Play Day" at the high school stadium today. The program, which began in the morning, was sponsored by the Girls' Athletic association.

The girls, divided into 16 teams, took part in eight rounds of sports during the morning. Games played were volleyball, deck tennis, challenges, badminton, baseball, dodgeball, kick-pin ball, and line soccer.

The girls were served lunch in the school cafeteria at noon.

The 16 teams then gave original skits, prepared by members of each group, in the school auditorium after lunch. Prizes were awarded to championship teams for morning and afternoon performances.

Ruth Sawyer was general chairman in charge of the program, G. A. A. advisor is Wilma Snider, director of girls' physical education.

sity. The great waterfront area and various industrial targets were reported severely bombed and burned.

The British heavily bombed the German ports of Hamburg, Bremen, Emden, and also attacked Rotterdam, reporting that they had caused much destruction.

Assert Iraq Troops Attack New Airdrome

NEW YORK—(AP)—A German wireless report from Turkey said today that Iraq troops had attacked the British airdrome at Sindebane, besides the one at Habbaniyah.

A broadcast of what was said to be an Iraq communique also said 30 tons of bombs had been dropped on Habbaniyah, while a British attempt to occupy the stronghold of Rutbah and the Rutbah airdrome with mechanized forces was frustrated.

Ambassador Says All Quiet in Baghdad

LONDON—(AP)—Sir Kinahan Cornwallis, British ambassador to Iraq, reported to London today that "all is quiet in Baghdad."

"While the situation there is tense, no incident has so far occurred," an official announcement said.

(German broadcasts reported the chasing of Sir Kinahan back into the embassy by a crowd of Iraqis who objected, the radio said to his distributing British propaganda leaflets in the Iraq capital. The broadcasts also reported the arrest of many British.)

Nazis Claim Sinking Of Million Tons

BERLIN—(INS)—The staggering total of 1,000,211 tons of British shipping was sunk during April, the German high command reported today.

Of this amount, about 400,000 tons were sunk in Greek waters by German planes blasting at transports evacuating British troops from Greece. About 250 other ships were badly damaged, many of which must be considered a total loss, according to the communique.

The figures were exclusive of ships sunk or damaged by striking mines.

Last night's raid on the Merseyside district of Liverpool caused "extensive fires and serious explosions," the communique claimed.

In North Africa, Nazi troops have penetrated deep beyond the outer defense of Tobruk, capturing a considerable number of pillboxes and several hundred prisoners despite stiff British resistance.

Reports today show $19,877.45 still needed before the goal is reached.

Clean-up squads will be organized Tuesday within each division, Rev. Roller said and these workers will contact prospects not previously reached by solicitors. Each major will have charge of organizing his or her own squad and the prospects will be contacted by new solicitors.

Monday's report luncheon will be held at the Y. M. C. A. and majors were urged by Rev. Roller to have their reports as complete as possible.

The drive to raise funds for 11 participating agencies ends Wednesday.

REPORT SINKING

Maritime Sources Indicate Freighter Intercepted.

NEW YORK —(AP)— The 3,298-ton German freighter Lech which left Rio De Janeiro five days ago in an attempt to run the British blockade was intercepted yesterday by a British auxiliary cruiser and was reported sinking off Bahia, Brazil, maritime sources said today.

No other details were available here. The information that the ship was sinking indicated she was scuttled by her crew.

The Lech, a North German Lloyd ship built at Bremen in 1939, arrived at Rio De Janeiro on March 3, with an airplane and chemical products for Brazil. Capt. Frederich Brinkmann said then the Lech would remain until the end of the war and that the arrival proved that "Germany delivers the goods."

Lesson-Sermon Topic Announced

"Everlasting Punishment" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in the Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

The Golden Text is: "He that covereth his sins shall not prosper: but whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy" (Proverbs 28:13).

Among the citations which comprice the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. . . . For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting" (Galatians 6:7,8).

Begin Series of Revival Services

Rev. and Mrs. Ellis Teasdale will begin a series of revival services at the Church of the Nazarene, Reba avenue at 7:30 p. m., Tuesday.

The Teasdales are evangelistists and singers of Jamestown, N. Y. They feature 12 musical instruments, and will be heard nightly through Sunday, May 18.

Besides their vocal numbers they will play selections on their vibraharp and cathedral chimes. They will alternate in preaching and will open each service at 7:30 p. m. with 15 minutes of music.

'What Think Ye of Christ?', Topic

Rev. Peter Young, pastor, will preach on "What Think Ye of Christ?" at the worship service of the First Congregational church at 10:45 a. m. Sunday.

The choir, under the direction of A. LeMoine Derr, will sing "Then Round about the Starry Throne" by Handel; Bentley Ford will sing as offertory solo, "If God So Clothe the Grass" by Bischoff. Mrs. Fred Lewis, organist, will play "Adagio Molto" by Guilmant and "Postlude in D" by Tours.

A group of young people from the church will attend the Central North Pilgrim Fellowship at Bellevue Sunday.

Dr. Fonkalsrud To Be Guest Pastor

Sunday morning at the First Christian church Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud will occupy the pulpit in the absence of Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger who is attending the international convention of Christian churches in St. Louis.

of American airplanes by July would exceed the British supply of air personnel.

"If Great Britain is to use the full volume of American production," this congressman said, "one thing is certain—Americans will be serving in ground crews and other capacities."

Says Public Opinion Holds Up Convoys

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A charge that the administration "wants to use convoys" but is being deterred by public opinion was voiced today by Senator Tobey (R-NH) as friends disclosed that Senator Pepper (D-Fla) would advocate in the senate Monday that the navy guard war shipments to Britain.

Pepper's projected speech, following closely a plea for convoys delivered in the senate Thursday by Senator Guffey (D-Pa), led Tobey to observe to reporters that the administration appeared to be attempting to pave the way for such a program.

"All this," said Tobey, "lends additional support to my thesis that the administration wants to use convoys but is being prevented from doing so because of public opinion."

He said he regarded Guffey's speech as a "trial balloon," likely to be followed by even more aggressive utterances from Pepper.

Both Pepper and Guffey have been supporters of President Roosevelt's program of aiding Britain, but administration leaders denied they had any advance knowledge of Guffey's speech. Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky said he learned of Guffey's plans to speak only a few minutes before the latter took the floor.

Some other quarters, however, regarded the Guffey and Pepper speeches as part of a concerted campaign by convoy advocates to offset charges made by Senators Wheeler (D-Mont), Clark (D-Mo), Nye (R-ND) and others in speaking tours that convoys would lead to involvement in war.

Britain, U. S. Ease Pressure on Eire

LONDON —(AP)— Britain and the United States were said reliably today to be easing pressure on Eire for bases and to be concentrating on a new plan for streamlined convoys to win the battle of the Atlantic.

An American source with good opportunities for an objective picture of the whole war situation described the British position at the moment as "pretty grim."

"You must remember," he said, "that these are a proud people who would be reluctant to admit any possibility of defeat even though it were imminent when attempting to assess the importance of our help in the battle of the Atlantic."

Need for quick aid is so urgent, he added, that even if the Irish decided to turn over their bases the machinery might be so cumbersome they would be of little immediate advantage.

Britain's greatest need, he declared, is swift institution of a system of organized convoys under close cooperation of the British and United States navies.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, MAY 3, 1941.

As Madame Perkins keeps her hat on while in her office there's always the hope that she's getting ready to leave.

It's probably the spring influence—anyhow, an item from the West tells about a jeweler accepting an old-age pension check as down payment on an engagement ring.

Centenary of Probation

PROBATION, as a means of giving another chance to first offenders against the law, is just winding up an experimental century during which it has come into quite general acceptance all over the United States.

It was in Boston, in 1841, that John Augustus, a shoemaker, asked the court to release a convicted man into his custody instead of putting him in prison. The idea was tried, with satisfactory results, and during the course of his lifetime the Boston cobbler intervened to the extent of having 2,000 offenders committed to his care, thus earning recognition as the father of probation. It was not until sixty years ago, however, that probation attained legal status in any state.

While it has met with some discouragements, its successes have far outweighed its failures and it has been found especially valuable in cases of juvenile first offenders, where sympathetic guidance has been found better than imprisonment. In Massachusetts and New York success is claimed in 75 per cent of the probationary cases handled.

To increase public interest in this subject, and also with a view to spreading information, the National Probation association plans to make the "John Augustus Centennial" a special feature of its annual conference to be held in Boston, May 29-31.

Reserves Right To Criticize

SPEAKING before the Ohio Federation of Republican Women's organizations in Columbus yesterday, Senator Robert A. Taft outlined views on Republican policies in the present emergency, which merit thoughtful consideration.

Asserting that the Republican party should refrain from wielding a party whip to compel men to give up their own convictions on questions dealing with the present war, Senator Taft expressed belief that Republicans can serve a useful purpose in pointing out defects of the defense program as it develops and submitting constructive suggestions as to how it can be improved.

"We can pledge and give 100 per cent co-operation in building up the navy, the air force and the army as quickly as possible, to that point which will not only prevent but discourage attack on America," he said.

A timely criticism of inefficient handling of the defense program was contained in a reference to "confusion existing among the various bureaus dealing with national defense, coupled with a suggestion that the Republican party "should propose legislation co-ordinating all of these bureaus under a single head."

"The Republican party," he said, "can criticize intelligently the expenditures which are proposed. Many old friends are appearing, dressed in red, white and blue, with a new hat labeled 'Defense'."

Without sacrifice of the spirit of unity, essential to successful operation of the great national defense program, it does appear that the voice of constructive criticism in matters having to do with waste of public money on non-defense enterprises, and of needless extravagance in defense projects, should be heard at this time.

Won't Let a Good Man Quit

DANIEL WILLARD, dean of the country's railroad presidents and head of the Baltimore and Ohio, said recently: "I have been offering my resignation every year since I was 70, but they don't follow my suggestions."

At the age of 80—thirty of these years he spent as president of the B. and O.—he steps out as the chief executive of the road and is replaced by a younger man, Roy Barton White, 57.

Apparently they still are not following Willard's suggestions, because instead of actually retiring he is made chairman of the board, from which position he will be able to guide the railroad's policy.

Of universal interest in a country like America is the fact both Daniel Willard and his successor started from the bottom of the ladder: Willard as a track laborer in his home town of North Hartland, Vt., and White as a telegraph operator.

The old copybook maxims of industry and hard work are still paying off, and America is still a land of opportunity where a common workman may rise to the highest positions in the industrial machine.

Those Who Prize Liberty

AS VALUES are tested in the furnace of these times, old ideals, familiar so long that we are almost unconscious of them, grow bright again. And the greatest of them is liberty, appreciated most when it is lost.

British Ambassador Halifax speaking in one of the southern states, reminded his hearers of the famous words of Patrick Henry in the Virginia house of delegates just before the Revolutionary war. There was a time when every schoolboy knew them. "I know not what course others may take," said the orator, "but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

That, said the ambassador, is the attitude of the British people today. It is the attitude of a growing multitude of people in many nations. And as it becomes stronger, those tyrannies will be swept away.

Music To Express Friendship

A HEMISPHERIC music fest of some sort had been scheduled long ago for the first week of May. The idea was to devote one day of National Music week to Inter-American music, with broadcasts by long and short wave of concerts and programs in the various American republics for the enjoyment of all.

War news and defense activities have made it harder for this pleasant interchange of entertainment to catch the public ear. Yet the project was well worth planning and the results doubtless will be good. There is already a good deal of inter-American music on the air, some good, some not so good, but all potential aids to growing understanding of one another by the peoples who have created it.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—A character almost as interesting as Broadway Rose, Shoestring Mary, or Danny the Fall is a guy known as Raymond the Great to every burlesque performer in the U. S. Raymond is one of the strong-arm stagedoor guards at the Eltinge burlesque theater on 42nd street. He thinks he is a talent scout for Hollywood.

The last time Margie Hart played the Eltinge, according to her representative, Milton Rubin, Raymond cornered her and lined her up for a five-year "contract" with M-G-M at $3,000 a week. Margie, who is a regular gal, played along with Raymond, signed the "contract" and thanked him for looking after her interests so well. Recently, she played the Eltinge again and Raymond dropped around for a call.

"Lissen," he said, "you remember that Metro contract we signed? Well, tear it up, it's no good."

Margie's eyes opened wide, but before she could say anything, Raymond added, "It's no good—I can get you a better deal at Twentieth Century-Fox."

TWO little black-eyed tamales from south of the border were introduced to Greenwich Village audiences in a Latin nightclub last season as mere babes who had been brought to the U. S. merely for the educational advantages they would derive. Their voices were so lovely it was decided to let them sing for a few weeks and they were great hits. Stagedoor Johnnies were effectively barred, however, by a management which explained that the young ladies were scarcely more than children, that they had been schooled in convents and were extraordinarily sheltered, and while in the U. S. their contact with the world was to be made only in the glow of the after-dinner lights.

Well, the wee little innocent ones, it turns out, have had previous contacts with the "outside world," for it is learned that both were divorcees, and one has recently become the bride of a detective in Guatemala. The other is engaged to a Mexican aviator. Which shows you just how trusting Broadway can be when confronted by a round baby stare.

AN INTERESTING error in book-binding was discovered by this observer in a drug store where are sold those small pocket-sized editions of popular novels and biographies. The cover on the one I bought said "Microbe Hunters" by Paul de Kreif, but when I got home and opened it, it turned out to be "Up From Slavery," by the late Booker T. Washington. No telling how many hundred were run off like that.

In the opinion of his fellow musicians Art Tatum, 31-year-old Toledo pianist, is the greatest all round jazz pianist the world has ever known.

BUCYRUS, county seat of Crawford county, was laid out February 17, 1822, by Col. James Kilbourne and Samuel Norton, "proprietors of the soil."

The region about the town had been thrown open to settlement in August, 1820, at which time it was full of bears, wolves, catamounts, foxes, and other wild animals. Colonel Kilbourne, who surveyed the site, named the town. Why he chose that name is still a matter of dispute.

When the town was laid out, the region to the north was an almost unbroken wilderness to the little village of New Haven on the Huron plains. In 1822, a state road had been started at Worthington, in Franklin county, to Fairfield, at New Haven. The road, a turnpike, was finished in 1823.

Bucyrus located at the crossing of the Sandusky river, soon became the main town on the highway from Columbus to Sandusky.

MODERN GULLIVER

Will Guard Cultural Treasures

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—In a hole in the ground in Kentucky, the U. S. A. has nearly all of its gold buried. Some day, in a hole in the ground in Kansas (or somewhere) the country may have much of its culture buried.

Archibald MacLeish, head of the Library of Congress, has been pushing the Library's M-day scheme for months. He now is able to report that before any bomb blasts the old-fashioned building that houses more than 6,000,000 books, 1,500,000 maps and cartographers' photographs, nearly that many pieces of music, and at least a half million fine prints, plans will have been completed to make some 600,000 of the most treasured of these items safe against blitzkrieg.

The details are a secret, but since they are based on the experiences of great libraries abroad, some conclusions may be drawn.

In the first place, there is the problem of the selection of books, manuscripts, prints, to be saved. To get at this, Librarian MacLeish appointed Dr. Jerrold Orne, a fellow of the library, as co-ordinator. Then he asked for volunteers to work on the cataloguing. Seven hundred men and women stepped forward and to date they have put in more than 10,000 hours of overtime (without pay or compensating time off) to get the library's treasures tagged for storage.

Originals Head List.

AT THE head of the list are such irreplacable literary and historical gems as the original Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, Lincoln's first drafts of the Gettysburg address, the private papers of George Washington and other presidents, Thomas Jefferson's library (or rather what was left of it after the British got through burning Washington in 1814) and thousands of irreplaceable first editions which comprise almost all the masterpieces of American literature. There also is that famous Gutenberg Bible. There are scores of prints, including the world-known Pennell collection of etchings. There are musical gems like original scores by the great German composers, Beethoven, Brahms and Wagner. There also are Payne's original "Home, Sweet Home," Key's "Star Spangled Banner," and Nevin's "Rosary."

Perhaps that will give you some idea of what will go into the bomb-proof hole in the ground. As for the hole or holes, David Lynn, Capitol architect, and MacLeish still are working on that. You can't bury books and art treasures like you do gold. The library caches will have to be ventilated, bug-proof and fireproof. That's no small order, but the successes and failures of European libraries and museums are pointing the way.

So far, MacLeish and Lynn have little more than plans. To execute them will cost money. The only way you can get money out of the government is through congress. Therefore, if you are interested in following up this safeguarding of the library's gems of inestimable value, watch for an appropriation bill that will provide the funds.

Were Years Ahead.

SOME of the great libraries and museums of Europe were more than five years ahead of the United States in working out this problem of preserving their most valuable assets. The business dates back a lot further than that, though. Ever since the great library at Alexandria was destroyed nearly 2,000 years ago, librarians have been trying to plan against "any eventualities" in time of war.

The art galleries, museums and other libraries in Washington, already following the lead of the Library of Congress—even the newly opened National (Mellon) Gallery of Art—are working on methods of burying their treasures where no blast from the skies can touch them.

Library and museum officials say this work is not confined entirely to Washington. Requests for suggestions from other cities have been numerous and it is likely the army or some other agency will include such suggestions in the series of pamphlets now being prepared about what to do in case of air attacks.

Listen World!

This Is Your Day

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

GETTING up with that same old aw-what-the-heck feeling? Blinking at life with the same old, bleary eye? Shuffling through the same old chores, not giving a darn what happens, with just about as much enthusiasm as a zombie with the pip?

Dollars to doughnuts you are. So are at least 50,000,000 other Americans. (Frequently including Yours Truly!) But what about it? What's it buying us?

Sure. I know there's a war. And business is shot to pieces. Or is it? 'N' no one knows what the president will do next, or what Hitler's up to. (Bet Adolf is having a headache over that little problem himself!) 'N' you need to go to the dentist. And there are always The Taxes to fall back on, when all other sources of gloom fail. Yes! ah yes—life's just one pain-in-the-neck after another! And unless you're the Village Idiot, you learned that years ago.

BUT WHY KICK TODAY IN THE TEETH, JUST BECAUSE YESTERDAY WAS A FLOP AND YOU CAN'T BET ON TOMORROW?

Today is a nice day. I'm watching it break as I write this. (Been working all night; one of those coffee-pot, newspaper drives). And now the dawn is coming up out of the sea, over the housetops, all gilt and glimmer and gay with bird song . . . coming up as fresh and fragrant as though it were the first morning in God's new-made Paradise. Which, as far as you and I are concerned, it is.

Never mind the taxes. Never mind the convoys. You don't have to settle them now before you even brush your teeth. You've just one thing to face right now, and that's—A BRAND-NEW DAY. A FRESH START. TWENTY-FOUR HOURS THAT ARE YOURS FOR THE TAKING, AND WHICH WILL NEVER COME AGAIN.

Get that straight, stranger. No matter what the future may hold, we'll never get the chance to live this day again. In another twelve hours it will be gone forever, with its challenge and adventure, its mystery and allure finished for keeps. And if we haven't made the most of them, it will be just our bad luck!

Of course, it's true. We've been Done Dirt in the past. There are a million things to moan over, if we want to dig them up. Also, we can spend a lot of time dreaming about the Wonderful Breaks that may come in the future. But in the meantime you have just one thing that's sure—one thing that's pressing and important and your very own—and that's Today.

SO I ASK AGAIN, WHY KICK IT IN THE TEETH? WHY ACT AS IF YOU HAD A FIRST MORTGAGE ON ETERNITY? PERHAPS THIS IS THE ONLY DAY YOU'LL EVER HAVE, AND IT'S CERTAINLY AS FINE A ONE AS YOU'LL EVER NEED. MOREOVER, IT HASN'T DONE ANYTHING TO YOU YET. BITTEN YOU ON THE ANKLE OR NICKED YOU FOR TEN BUCKS. IT'S JUST A SWELL, LITTLE NEW-BORN MORNING, BEGGING FOR A CHANCE TO GET ALONG!

WHY DON'T YOU GO WITH IT, YOU BIG STIFF?

Detroit's Awakening.

The wheels of chance have made a complete turn in Detroit.

In August, 1939, a 33-year-old mother, Mrs. Janet McDonald, sat in her automobile with her arm around her little daughter and came to the conclusion that death was the only way out. Gambling had ruined the life of her lover and her own. She wrote a number of notes telling how gambling was a racket pouring millions into the hands of a few and how public officials were being bribed. Then she took her daughter's life and her own.

This tragedy awakened a cynical city. A judge impaneled a grand jury to summon the persons named in the death notes. Small fry, fearing for their own hides, began to tell on higherups, and so the graft was traced to the top.

The gambling houses were closed. A former county prosecutor, former police chief, former sheriff and some 20 others were convicted a few days ago. That is the story of gambling: easy money for a moment, lives wrecked forever.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Tussling With Defense Taxation, Congress Finds Knotty Problems

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THREE BILLION, 600 million dollars is a lot of money—enough to build 60 battleships or buy at least a suit of clothes or a dress for every man, woman and child in the United States.

It's the amount by which the administration plans to boost taxes for the next fiscal year in order to help meet a budget estimated at 19 billion dollars.

The house ways and mean committee is tussling with the problem of how to do it without pinching too much.

It seems almost certain that "the little fellow," the one who now pays little or no income tax, will feel the new revenue bill, but Treasury Secretary Morgenthau cracked down on congressional proposals to tax tea, coffee and sugar as a burden to "the poor man's table."

Special Bonds for Sale.

Two ways besides taxing of meeting expenses are borrowing and cutting non-defense items in the budget. The treasury went to work on the first with a mammoth drive to sell special bonds ranging from 10c stamps for children to $10,000 securities for millionaires and business houses. The president opened the drive with a radio address Wednesday night.

Morgenthau suggested the farm parity payment fund and the CCC and National Youth administration appropriations be trimmed to meet part of a proposed billion-dollar budget slash.

While President James S. Kemper of the United States chamber of commerce warned against "an hysterical derangement of our normal production," persons close to defense officials reported they were planning on the assumption that the war will rage at least two more years.

At Home

Back to the Pits.

Jesse Jones is: A Texan, slow-spoken, a teller of funny stories, secretary of commerce, and the nation's newest labor trouble-shooter.

When pressure and strong words failed to budge Southern coal operators, Jones stepped in and gently persuaded them to grant striking miners a $1-a-day raise and reopen their mines as requested by President Roosevelt. CIO United Mine Workers' demands for another $.40 to eliminate a North-South differential will be negotiated. Northern operators had already agreed to raise wages from $6 to $7 a day.

Shyly Jones related afterwards: "I told them that the mines had to be opened some way and asked them what any of them would do if they were in the president's shoes."

Settlement came none too soon for the defense program because most soft coal miners in the Appalachian area were idle. Steel production was beginning to drop off.

Johnson Dropped.

President Roosevelt declined to reappoint Hugh S. Johnson as a brigadier general in the army reserve corps. Johnson, a columnist and former NRA chief, has also been a severe critic of the administration's foreign policy.

The war department had recommended that Johnson be renominated as a reserve brigadier general. But a White House secretary told Johnson that the war department had no plan to place him on active duty "and in view of this fact your reappointment would be of no purpose." The general had been tardy in asking reappointment when his commission expired April 10.

Johnson said FDR's action was "neither very wise nor very consistent with what at least used to be a very close and precious friendship."

On NLRB's Powers.

Well established in the labor board's authority to order a company to rehire a person fired for union membership or activities. But less clear was the board's right to order the hiring of persons found to have been refused work because of union connections.

This point too was cleared up when the supreme court ruled 5 to 2 that the labor board did have such authority.

Justice Frankfurter said:

"To differentiate between discrimination in denying employment and in terminating it would be a differtiation . . . without substance. . . ."

Frankfurter was careful to specify that the board must find in each case that such orders tend to abate labor strife.

How It Started

Christening the Ship.

It won't be long now—the papers will soon be filled with pictures of this society bud or that senator's daughter cracking a bottle and spilling its spirits on a newly launched battleship—modern version of an ancient ceremony of invocation to the gods for successful voyage and safe return.

Taking us back to the superstition and idol worship of past civilizations, the custom is a survival of one of the oldest rites in history.

The practice is traceable directly to the libations which were poured over the galleys leaving the shores of ancient Greece. Rome and Sidon. libations to the god under whose protection the fate of the ship was placed and whose carved image could always be found in the prow.

One-Minute Test.

1. What is a P. B. X. operator?
2. How many inches are there in a hand, when used to measure a horse?
3. What fruits are classified as citrus.

Hints on Etiquette.

When you take a friend to a party or to call on another friend of yours, simply introduce him to the hostess, and she will perform the other introductions, if any.

Words of Wisdom.

One-Minute Test Answers.

1. Operator of a private board exchange, such as is used in the majority of up-to-date apartment houses, hotels and offices.
2. A hand is four inches.
3. Oranges, lemons, grapefruit, kumquats, lime, citron, tangerine and citrange.

Abroad

Spotlight on Anzacs.

German newspapers reported that the British lost 260,000 tons of shipping in evacuating Greece. Britain said she managed to evacuate 80% of her 60,000 troops.

As the German took Athens, a semi-official German announcement said that Australians were making a last-ditch stand west of the capital to "gain time for the main British forces in Attica to slip away."

Britain reported it had taken a devastating air wallop at the huge German port of Hamburg but admitted that Germans had hammered Plymouth so badly that parts of the Channel port had to be evacuated.

Sandstorm Hampers Axis.

The Axis thrust in Africa toward Suez had trouble getting more than a few miles past the Egyptian border. Britain laid Axis troubles to (1) a severe sandstorm which had been raging in the desert for several days, (2) the harassing tactics of a British armored division, (3) withering RAF attacks, (4) quick blows at the Axis' thin line of communication by Australians who clung to the Libyan port of Tobruk.

In East Africa British took the important city of Dessie, west of Addis Ababa. This left only two more major cities in Italian hands, Gondar and Jimma.

Russia Retaliating?

Germany sent more troops to Finland (apparently en route to northern Norway under a transit agreement made last fall) and occupied islands near the strategic Dardanelles. Thereupon Josef Stalin's Russia clamped down on the shipment of war supplies across the Soviet Union.

This Russian move might mean that Germany can not now elude the British blockade by bringing goods from the outside world via the Trans-Siberian railway.

Ship Seizure Agreement.

After U. S. coast guardsmen dramatically boarded 69 foreign ships in American harbors a month ago, several Latin American countries quickly followed our lead.

These actions were bulwarked when spokesmen for all of the 21 American republics agreed in Washington to uphold the right of each American nation to commandeer foreign ships in its ports. Latin American harbors now hold at least 96 German and Italian ship.

Under the plan, American governments would compensate the ships' owners. A "pool" of ships sufficient to meet the requirements of inter-American trade would be established. Tonnage over and above what is needed for that commerce then might possibly be sold or chartered to the hard-pressed British.

Quotes

Sidney Hillman, associate director of OPM, contends that the world crisis is labor's battle: "No American worker needs to be reminded what is at stake for labor in the present crisis. The real issue at stake is whether free labor or slave labor will prevail."

Alfred M. Landon champions the right of free speech: "Obviously there is being made an attempt to smear every one who dares stick up his head in opposition to war but the time for free discussion has not yet passed."

People

In Search of Money.

A steadfast principle of rugged Rep. Robert Doughton is that government revenue should be based on ability to pay. Thus he favors income taxes, opposes sales taxes.

During the government's financial crisis at the beginning of the New Deal, Doughton opined: "A sales tax places the burden of government on those least able to bear it. It taxes the bread and britches of the poor man whose income goes almost entirely for food and clothing and shelter."

These are still pretty much Bob Doughton's views as his house ways and means committee writes the new $3,500,000,000 revenue bill.

Venezuela's Next President.

Two things that come into minds of North Americans when they think of Venezuela are that the country is a great producer of oil and is close to the Panama Canal. Americans heard during the week that the Venezulean congress elected overwhelmingly as the country's next president General Medina Angarita.

Medina has been a consistent advocate of Pan American cooperation. In his campaign he promised to continue democratic reforms initiated by Lopez Contreras, his predecessor.

In Short

Doubled: The income taxes which Canadians in the lower brackets must pay. In the future personal income tax rates will start at 15%.

Died: August Heckscher, whose mining and real estate millions were flooded into philanthropies for under-privileged children and destitute old people.

Removed: Four German aviators, from the American liner President Garfield, by a Canadian warship, near Honolulu. The Germans were bound for their homeland via Japan and Russia.

Arrived: Capt. James Roosevelt, the president's eldest son, in Chungking, China, to study China's military set-up. He was accompanied by Major Gerald Thomas. From Chungking they plan to go to Cairo to observe British-Axis African campaigns.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, May 4.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a most conflicting one. While the faculties and forces are keen, constructive and keyed to high pressure, yet there is danger of being carried to excess and regrets by excitement and emotional impulses which may have unfavorable reactions on the health and those immediately involved. Elders in the household may seem affected, unless patiently treated.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be under a menace of a year of fluctuating circumstances, with the abilities and ambitions keyed to achievment but beset by confusions, perils and several forms of menace and hazard. These seem largely to revolve around private relations, wherein elders, superiors, and those in the domestic circle or affectional life are involved. Safeguard and cherish all such relationships lest they hamper constructive efforts.

A child born on this day should be enterprising, studious and responsible with much real ability and talent, but its inner life may suffer sorrow and defeat.

For Monday, May 5.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a day of major significance, with matters of first magnitude coming to the fore for clever and sagacious as well as well-directed manipulation. Large and expansive opportunity, in connection with large corporations, secret bodies or industrial enterprises of first importance. And while the energies, initiative and practical abilities may be active the desired results may be defeated or miscarry through impetuous or reckless moves, by strife, estrangement or other over-indulgences. Shun extravagance.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of great opportunity for growth, achievement and expansion, coming through influences of major scope. The forces and abilities are attuned to such advanced objectives but seem menaced by indomitable urges to express in the direction of violence, passion, indulgence and excess in one form or another. Such produce disruption, estrangement and ultimate defeat of excellent prospects, unless the brakes be put on. A child born on this day should be extremely talented and have great opportunity which it may undermine by wild, erratic and passionate behavior.

LILLIAN RAUB BURIED TODAY

BUCYRUS — Funeral services were to have been held today for Lillian A. Raub, 80, who died here Thursday following complications arising from a hip injury 11 months ago.

Rev. A. J. E. Manton, pastor of the First Methodist church, of which she was a member, will officiate. Burial will be made in Oakwood cemetery.

Born in Bucyrus June 15, 1860, she is survived by a brother, Charles Raub, with whom she made her home.

WIN SPEECH MEET PLACES

Two Shelby Students Take Honors In National Forensic Tourney.

SHELBY—John Purdy and Sally Van Horn, Shelby representatives in the national tournament of National Forensic league which closed today in Lexington, Ky., place sixth and seventh respectively in the finals of the dramatic declamation division of the tournament held Thursday night.

Sally, who was also entered in the humorous division of the tournament, lost out in the semi-finals of that division.

Jo Ann Fish and Velma Van Wagner, were eliminated in the Americanism and Poetry contests respectively in the semi-finals of those special events. Only six contests remained in those divisions when the Shelby students were eliminated.

The Shelby delegation which also includes Speech Supervisor Leonard Linsenmayer, high school speech coach, and Betty Hart, a senator from here to the "mock" student congress, will return home today from the tournament which has been held all of this week there.

TANK EXPLODES

Grass Fire Ignites Oil Tank In Field Near Shelby.

SHELBY — An oil tank explosion in an open field near the Ohio Seamless Tube company, Thursday afternoon blew the top off the tank, but did no further damage, Fire Chief Eugene Schull reported.

A grass fire followed a track of oil up to the tank and ignited the small amount of oil that was left in the bottom of the tank. The oil had been dripping from a tap which had been left open.

The Shelby fire department was called and soon extinguished the fire. The tank was used for oil storage for the Tube company.

JARED MANSFIELD ANNUAL MEETING

D. A. R. Chapter Elects Officers at Business Session at Women's Club Friday Evening With Mrs. Richardson, Regent.

AT THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Jared Mansfield chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the Women's Club last night Mrs. Stanley Richardson was re-elected regent for the coming year. She will be assisted by Mrs. Brinkerhoff Spear, vice regent; Mrs. John Shook, chaplain; Mrs. R. W. Jones, secretary; Mrs. Edwin L. Balyeat, treasurer; Mrs. K. E. Buhr, registrar; Miss Jeannette Martin, historian and librarian; Mrs. A. E. Courtney, guardian of the colors; and Mrs. A. C. Tuttle, member of the board of mangement for four years.

Following the patriotic opening Mrs. Shook, chaplain, led the devotions. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. George J. Kochenderfer and Mrs. S. D. Hoover.

During the business session which was presided over by the regent, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Barr, a real granddaughter, was welcomed as a member from Olentangy chapter, Galion, Ohio. The group agreed to contribute to the Community Fund and planned to place a wreath on the doughboy statue in Central Park on Memorial Day. Mrs. George Hughes, chairman of approved schools, told of sending a large box of clothing to Crossnore school in North Carolina.

Reports of the 50th annual Continental Congress were made. Mrs. H. L. Ackerman reported the National Defense program which preceded the opening session. Those reporting were Mrs. Richardson, Miss Cloude Blake and Mrs. C. H. Henkel, member of the House Committee.

The next meeting will be June 14, Flag Day, with Mrs. Shook. The affair will be a covered-dish picnic at noon followed by installation of officers. Mrs. A. J. Fraser, Mrs. Howard McClure and Mrs. Jones will assist.

Mrs. E. R. Jenkins Named Head of Bible Group

Members of the Neighborhood Bible club met at the home of Mrs. C. H. Henkel, 777 Woodhill road, Friday afternoon for their annual election of officers. Mrs. E. R. Jenkins was chosen to head the group and will be assisted by Mrs. J. R. Turner, vice president; Mrs. R. E. McCombs, secretary; Mrs. D. L. Arehart, assistant secretary; Mrs. Hobart Cashell, treasurer.

Fourteen attended the meeting which was in charge of Mrs. George Hoover, retiring president. It was planned to study the book of Hebrews for the coming year. Devotions were led by Mrs. Arehart and Mrs. William Nusbaum and Mrs. Earl Frankeberger led the lesson study.

The last meeting of the year will be held May 16 at the Susie Janis home, Park avenue west road, for a luncheon at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Bert Gettles will conduct the lesson study.

Plan for Lilac Tea on May 14 At Park Pavilion

Members of the Cottage Garden club met Friday and planned for the Lilac Tea to be given at the North Lake park pavilion on May 14 in observance of their gift of lilac shrubs to the city on the border of North Lake park. A program has been planned for this invitational event which is in charge of Mrs. S. A. Wentz and her committee. The program is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Stanley Richardson, Shepard road, was hostess at her home yesterday, assisted by Mrs. A. C. Tuttle. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock with tulips decorating the table. Mrs. Howard Smith and Mrs. C. F. Sheriff presided at the buffet board. The business session was in charge of Mrs. Sheriff and roll call was answered on "Name of Herbs." Mrs. Tuttle spoke on "Horticulture" and Mrs. S. A. Wentz gave the paper on "Herb and Herb Gardening."

The next meeting on May 16 will be at the home of Mrs. C. C. Blair, 408 Chevy Chase road, with Mrs. Baxter as associate hostess.

Priscillian Club Members Hold Meeting

Mrs. John Shook, 42 Shady Lane, was hostess to 14 members of the Priscillian club and two guests, Mrs. L. Decker and Mrs. R. A. Dauber of Warren, Friday afternoon at her home. Luncheon was served the group at 1 o'clock at a table attractive with spring flowers. During the business session a nominating committee was appointed which is composed of Mrs. W. P. Close, Mrs. L. H. Beam and Mrs. W. H. Gugler.

The last meeting of the year will be held May 16 at the Women's club with Mrs. J. W. Galbraith as hostess. Election of officers will be held at that time.

Mary Hartman To Head Eagle Auxiliary Group

Mary Hartman was elected president of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Eagle lodge when the annual business session was held Friday evening at the hall. Others chosen for the coming term include: Thelma Fisher, vice president; Josephine Dockerty, chaplain; Donna Berg, secretary; Marie Herrold, treasurer; Alice Stutz, inside guard; and Kathryn Stutz, outside guard.

Plans were made for the losers in a recent contest to give a dinner party at the Eagle hall on May 22. It was also decided to hold formal initiation of 20 candidates on May 16 at the hall.

Following the services there will be a business session and luncheon in charge of Marie Herrold and her committee.

Mother and Daughter Dresses Smart

Mother and daughter dresses, mother and daughter shoes—a family affair style note, stronger than ever for summer. The dresses are peasant-styled sheer cottons, polka-dotted and piped in red. The shoes, washable moccasins with new walled toes and wide five-toned sole-to-sole bands, come in several colors as well as white.

Miss Mary Salsgiver Weds Herman Weiland

A BACKGROUND of palms, ferns and beauty baskets of spring flowers formed a pretty setting for the wedding at 9:30 this morning for Miss Mary Salsgiver of Mansfield and Herman Weiland, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Weiland, 356 Lexington avenue. The single ring service was read at the St. Peter's Catholic church by Father John Flynn in the presence of friends and relatives.

Attired in a powder blue redingote with navy accessories and a corsage of yellow roses, the bride approached the altar. Her matron of honor, Mrs. John Weiland, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, wore a rose suit with pale blue accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Bert Weiland, brother of the bridegroom served him as best man.

After the service a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bridegroom's mother with 20 in attendance. Appointments were in white and a large wedding cake centered the table. Later the young couple will leave for a short wedding trip. When they return they will make their home at 180 Lexington avenue, Apt. 4.

Mrs. Weiland has been employed at the Mansfield-Leland hotel and Mr. Weiland at the Ohio Brass company.

L. C. club. The wedding date has been set for May 28, the place to be announced later.

Cards were the diversion of the evening. Prizes were awarded Mrs. John Herlihy, Mrs. Nick Nagle and Miss Jerry Madden. The next meeting will be held May 15 at the home of Mrs. John Herlihy, 219 Walter avenue. Miss Helen Austin will serve as associate hostess.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"NO MY angel," Dicky replied airily. "I expect to be right on the job back there to see that our little hell-cat, Carolyn, gets safely landed back in Weirnampton."

"But how can you?" I asked, bewildered. "You're on this through train to New York! You won't be in until midnight."

"Granted all those facts," my husband admitted. "But there also is a through train starting from New York about one o'clock —I've checked on it—and I can get a sleeper. So I'll be in good shape tomorrow morning to tackle anything in the way of gangsters who may want to intercept our journey, and snatch little Carolyn away from us."

"You've thought of everything," I commented admiringly. "But what about the Brixtons? Won't they be worried and mystified when you don't come back?"

"Neither a worry nor a mysti," Dicky answered complacently. "You see when I went into the station, ostensibly to get a bill changed, remember?—"

"Yes, I remember," I assented tensely.

Placing the Brixtons.

"Well, I didn't need change any more than I do another wallet for the bills I don't possess. But I did need time and opportunity to tell the station agent a few things. He's a good fellow, and I gave him my spare bunch of keys to the car. He promised to have it sent to a garage, and have the garage man bring it back to meet my train tomorrow morning. He also said he would telephone Sam Brixton, telling him that I had gone to New York with you, but would be back at the Brixton home in time for breakfast, which I will."

"As your nephews would put it, you certainly 'put one over on your wife,' I said, trying to divest my voice of chagrin.

"I had to," he retorted defensively. "For you sure were holding out on me. And while I'm on the subject, you might as well come clean on something else which has been buzzing around by bean. Are you sure you reported all that conversation between Carolyn and the gangster, which Ronald overheard?"

"No. I didn't." I told him steadily. "The thing the gangster wanted most was the number of my compartment on the train tonight. Carolyn was to find out what it was and tell him on his second telephone call."

"I thought so," my husband said, added witheringly, "It's a wonder you didn't write it out for Carolyn, so she wouldn't make any mistake when she next talked to her gangster boy friend."

"I don't blame you for thinking so," I said meekly, for indeed I was in the depths of self-abasement over my folly. "But I wasn't quite that bad. Instead Ronald and I saw to it that Carolyn didn't get a chance to ask you about the compartment. I told her that I didn't have any."

Dicky caught me to him with an impulsive hug, and laughed as he rumpled my hair teasingly, and then kissed me.

In New York.

"You don't need to eat any more humble pie," he said. "Your tyrant-husband is appeased. But, for the love of old Abraham and all the rest of the prophets, don't try to save me trouble and danger any more where you're concerned. That's a job I took on many years ago, promising to take care of you, right in front of the minister, too. You don't want to make me out a liar and a slacker, do you?"

"I'll be good," I promised him.

"See that you are," he said. "And now, let's 'talk of other things.' You have enough horrors waiting for you when you get in."

He gave me no chance to indulge any fears or qualms; instead, kept me a fascinated listener—there is no more interesting talker than Dicky when he chooses—and the trip seemed short indeed until we left the train and came down the ramp.

We caught sight of Noel before he saw us, and Dicky's hand tightened on my arm.

"Watch your step!" he adjured me. "Something's wrong! Pipe Noel's face."

CHAPTER IX

But within a few days, she discovered that her finances were in an even worse condition than she could ever have imagined. Creditors beset her from every direction. The very house she was living in was so heavily mortgaged that it would have to go along with everything else. Even if she succeeded in borrowing enough funds to save it, she would have no way of repaying such a large sum. If she didn't let it go now, it would have to be lost later—unless she married money.

She never, she decided, could bring herself to marry entirely for money, although loving Hal as she did, it would be most convenient to marry him. However, that wonderful event could not take place until he was free—a year or more from now. By that time—even long before—her pocketbook would be decidedly flat. She was as poor as the proverbial church mouse at this minute, even though she had to pinch herself to believe it.

Susan Stone did little but cry and bewail her bad luck. She was too filled with self-pity even to lecture Raye about Hal Bedford. Raye wondered if auntie wouldn't even be reconciled to seeing her niece marry any divorced man who had wealth enough to make it an object. Money had become auntie's god. After all, auntie was to be pitied.

It was Raye who discharged the faithful servants, many of whom had been with her for years. It was Raye who answered unnecessarily abusive telephone calls from tradespeople whom she had never had any intention of fleecing. It was Raye who answered the calls from many amazed friends who had always thought of her as a symbol of wealth.

It was Raye who anxiously searched for and found a neat little furnished apartment where Aunt Susan could sleep in the davenport bed and she on the sofa. It was Raye who packed her own trunks after Celia had gone, and helped Aunt Susan to pack hers.

But after looking over the new accommodations that Raye offered, it was Aunt Susan who went into hysterics and bluntly refused to set foot in them—that is, permanently.

"I couldn't live cooped up in such a place—you should realize that, Raye, " said Susan Stone emphatically.

"But it's the best small apartment I could find," Raye told her aunt worriedly. "You know we have to live quite—well, very differently now."

"Oh, well—you're young—you can manage in such a place. The mere shame of living on that commonplace street would ruin my health. I simply cannot bring myself to do it!"

"I believe you'll have to," came from Raye disgustedly.

"Hardly. I'm leaving this town for good."

Raye was aghast. "But, auntie —you can't go away! You're all—all I have! We've been together so many years! Why, auntie—I can't see how you could do such a thing!"

"It's my love for you, Raye, that's making me do it. I can't think of being a burden to you—and a way has—has opened for me to live in Boston."

"Boston?"

"Yes—my old friend Clarissa Bell has asked me to come to live with her. She's been begging me for years to help her with a little specialty shop she owns. As far as I can learn, she's done fairly well with it. So we'll make out—somehow."

Raye's head was in a dizzy whirl. She knew now that she would be far happier alone than with the constantly complaining Aunt Susan around, yet the way she was acting was a disagreeable surprise. She had thought auntie would stick to the finish.

Raye was forced to admit now that there was nothing to do but gird up her courage and try to find some way to support herself. Surely she shouldn't be so very difficult to make a living for one person herself.

The revelations had played up prominently Mawson Duke's suicide and his thefts over the years from the Stone fortune. It was one of the biggest scandals that had ever broken in Wilville. Raye's old friends continued to drop in to see her or to telephone in order to gather the latest details. The sympathy they offered sounded genuine enough, yet Raye thought it lacked something. She attempted to persuade herself that she was too upset to be satisfied with anything but still the uncomfortable impression lingered.

Rosalind Grinner invited Raye to go to Lake Louise for a month and Cissy Bloome had lovely plans for a cross-country trip in her luxurious new station wagon. Invitations for gay parties buzzed around Raye as usual, but she felt as if she could never again be light-hearted enough to take part in jolly social affairs, and refused them all.

Of one thing she was certain. None of these people could be approached for a job. They would, even now, laugh at the very idea of the high-spirited, beautifully groomed Raye ever having to work for a living. No—making these frivolous old friends of hers see reason wasn't in the books. She'd have to strike out cold and talk some stranger into giving her a job. What kind of job, she hadn't the faintest notion.

In the midst of all this hubbub, Aunt Susan left for Boston. She had parted tearfully from Raye who now was not greatly impressed, could never be again, by any avowal of affection toward her that Aunt Susan ever made.

When Raye, seated in a taxi, rode for the last time out the picturesque winding drive of her lovely Wilville home, her eyes were blinded with tears. She fully realized now what had happened to her. As the taxi headed down the broad avenue past stately homes built by Wilville's financially powerful, her former neighbors, she wondered bleakly what would ever become of her, now that she was strictly on her own.

She hadn't heard from Hal Bedford since that day she telephoned him and told him of Duke's suicide and that her fortune was gone. That was all of two weeks ago and Ruthie must have gone out of town long since. She tried to make excuses for him in her mind, tried not to feel too possessive toward a man upon whom she actually had no claim. At any rate, she would not call him again and if they happened to meet, she would be very cool to him. Perhaps though, Ruthie had, as Hal had expressed it, brought things to a showdown and he was only being cautious. But the whole business hurt.

However, for a few days she was so busy geting settled in her new apartment that she had little time to brood over Hal or anyone else.

Then unexpectedly, he telephoned her and the world was really beautiful again.

'Haven't meant to neglect you, darling," he told her quickly. 'I've been trying to get matters straightened out. How have you been, dear?"

There was that tender insistence in his deep voice again that always made her heart beat faster. No famous symphony orchestra had ever stirred her to greater heights.

"Oh, fine. But I've missed you. Hal, wondered how—how matters were progressing."

"I'll tell you all about it tonight when I see you. The coast is clear. Isn't that swell?"

"Why—yes," she said, a little hesitantly.

But somehow this being the lovelight for a summer bachelor did not wholly appeal to her. There was too much at stake.

It was not long after Raye's conversation with Hal that Ruthie Bedford knocked on Raye's apartment door.

The astonished Raye greeted her with, 'Why, I thought you were in Atlantic City!"

It was the wrong thing to say. Raye realized the instant it came out.

"I presume Hal mentioned my leaving," Ruthie said, pointedly. "Well, I decided I'd be in no hurry to go—I had a few errands to attend to—first."

"Yes, Hal did say you were taking Toots to a cooler place. I was sorry to hear about her illness," said the wondering Raye.

"Were you?" Ruthie was in the tiny living room now.

"Won't you sit down?" Raye was decidedly nervous. She had endured enough the last few days to upset her and now this unexpected appearance of the angry-looking Ruthie was the last straw. But she added quickly, "It's so nice to see you, Ruthie."

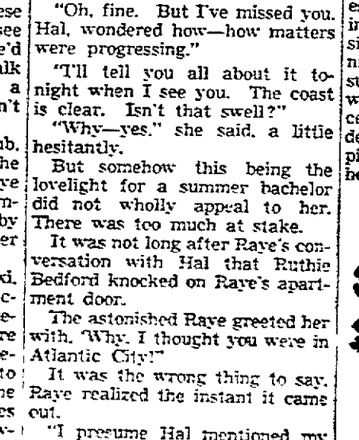
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SOMEBODY IS SQUEEZED

Occasionally a hand comes along with the possibilities of a squeeze play against one defender or another. The declarer may have to take his choice as to which he will try to squeeze, making the best estimate he can of the location of important cards held by the opposition. But better still is the planning of the final combination in such a way that your play will work against either opponent. If certain missing cards are in one defender's hand, then he feels the pinchers; if his partner has them, he is the unlucky player.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	Dbl	1 ♥	2 ♦
3 ♣	3 ♠	Pass	Pass
Dble

This was rubber bridge, and South didn't want to be set two tricks if he could help it. Careful handling of his cards limited the loss to one. West led the club 8 to the A. East laid down his top two trumps, then the heart A and Q. When he returned the club Q to the K, South was already down a trick, so figured out the pattern to avoid losing any more.

Holding to his club 10, he knew East would have to guard that with the J. He knew West would have to guard the heart J with the K. So neither East nor West could safely retain three diamonds. Whichever had three of the outstanding ones, South could squeeze him. So he laid down all of his remaining trumps. When he finally led the last one, the spade 7, he retained in dummy the heart J and three diamonds, keeping the club 10 and two diamonds in his own hand.

Of course, if West had played the heart K on that, a diamond would have been shed from dummy, as the heart J would then be set up. But West threw off a diamond. The dummy discard then was the now useless heart J. The squeeze had already worked, but South didn't yet know it. For, if East held three diamonds to an honor, the squeeze would have been on him. He would have had to throw off his club J, setting up the 10, or a diamond, setting up the dummy's third diamond. Naturally the hand finished with three diamond tricks regardless of East's play.

Four Week-End Lesson.

When the wrong opponent has made an opening lead, you have the option under the rules of treating the card as a "penalty card," subject to play at the first legal opportunity, or telling the correct leader what suit he must lead. Usually the second of these penalties is inflicted. Can you think of a situation in which the other penalty is to be preferred? And can you set up a hand to exemplify it?

"I get a kick," says Mansfield Braves Business Manager Oscar Ruhl, "every time I see that name 'Blackburn' heading the batting order for Indianapolis.

"You'd never have thought, looking at Wayne Blackburn the first day he hit Mansfield, that he'd be playing ball a few years later in the Association, or any other place outside a cow pasture.

"What the boy lacked in appearance he more than made up in confidence.

"'I'm a baseball player,' he informed one and all at Westinghouse when he showed up there one morning looking for a job.

"You couldn't prove it to look at him, so there was nothing left for Manager Frank Emmer of the Westies to do but pour him into a monkey suit and try him out.

"And the kid looked pretty good out there at second base, and made a couple hits. 'I might as well keep him for a while,' said Emmer, 'he'll be good for a few laughs anyhow.'

"But there was nothing funny about the kid's ball playing. He not only won a regular job, but before the season was over he was leading the team in hitting.

"A poof hitter he is and always was. One of those fellows who is always popping pitches just beyond the infield and winding up on first with a hit.

"Pitchers in every league he's played in have hated to see him come to bat. They knew he'd be poofing one just out of reach of any fielder.

"So the Westies spotted the boy to a hair cut, and gave him five dollars to go uptown and buy a pair of shoes. He bought a pair of shoes, but darned if he didn't bring back three dollars change.

"It was no wonder they doubted he was a ball player, even after they saw him play."

So the Westies were happy they didn't spurn
The pleas of hill-billy Wayne Blackburn.

Winning Streaks Mount

Consecutive Victory Plan Becomes Custom.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THIS spring is setting some kind of a record in winning streaks in the major leagues—if not in length, then certainly in breadth.

The Brooklyn Dodgers dazzled the baseball world for a while by running their string to nine games. Now, before the shine has worn off this feat, it is endangered by both the Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Cardinals.

The Indians, American league leaders, have won eight in a row and the National league pace-setting Cards have taken seven straight.

Cleveland, considered a light-hitting combination at the start of the season, has blossomed out as an array of hitters and uncorked 56 safeties in its last four games.

This power helped the veteran Mel Harder get credit for his third straight victory yesterday, 7-3 against the Boston Red Sox. Jeff Heath hit a triple with the bases loaded, Hal Trosky made three hits, including a home run, and Ken Keltner smacked three for extra bases.

The Cardinals punched out a 4-2 triumph over the Phillies yesterday with another of their young pitchers, Howard Krist, turning in a five-hit performance.

The Washington Senators and St. Louis Browns came up with another marathon which Washington won 7-4 in 12 innings. The payoff came on Rick Ferrell's single with the bases loaded followed by Pitcher Sid Hudson's double.

The Chicago White Sox cooled off the New York Yankees, 8-1. Ted Lyons held them to five hits.

The Detroit Tigers kept their artillery white hot by reeling off 17 hits to beat the Philadelphia Athletics 15-1 behind the seven-hit hurling of Schoolboy Rowe.

Providents Open Season

Girls' Softball Team Meets Elyria Sunday.

Mansfield's state championship girls' softball team, the Mansfield Provident Loans, open their season tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at Johns park against the Elyria Franks Bakery.

Last year the Mansfield club defeated Elyria 3-2 in the finals of the district tournament, and then borrowed two of the Elyria player for future play in the state and national meets.

Word comes from Elyria that the Bakery girls have an improved ball club this season, but the Providents have not been caught napping in that respect. They also have several new players who are counted on to strengthen the lineup.

Mansfield's starting lineup tomorrow probably will be: J. Herrick 2b, M. Holda ss, D. Schuster 3b, E. Jocha 1b, M. Tipul lf, M. Bessemer rs, O. Whiteman rf, L. Schaffer cf, F. Biddinger c, and either Frances Clark Knapp or F. Casper p. Reserves include D. Peters cf, and B. Shelton rf.

Kentucky Classic Raced on This Track

Indians Seek Ninth In Row

Al Milnar Gets Task Of Continuing Streak.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— It was up to Southpaw Al Milnar today to protect a winning streak that was knocking on the door of nine straight as the Cleveland Indians met the Boston Red Sox in the second game of their two-game series.

Leading the league by two full games the Indians made it eight in a row yesterday with a 7-3 decision over the visitors, as Mel Harder furnished additional evidence that his return to top form in early season contests will have a great effect on the tribe's pennant chances.

The Indians, led by Hal Trosky, with a homer and two singles, and Jeff Heath with a triple and two singles, got to Dick Newsome and Tom Judd for 11 hits and 22 bases.

Mike Ryba, veteran man-of-all-positions, was to take the mound for Boston today.

Hager Shoots One Under Par

Paces Tyger Golfers To Second Victory.

Al Hager blasted a sparkling 71 over Possum Run golf course yesterday afternoon to pace Coach Oberlander's Mansfield high divot diggers to their second straight victory of the season, a 16-0 shut-out of Galion.

A strong wind appeared to bother Al's teammates and their opponents, but it made no nevermind to the Hammerin' Hager as he traveled down the middle and up to the can to tour the layout in one under par figures.

The other Mansfielders were slightly over their fine scores of earlier in the week at Mt. Vernon but they didn't need to be so good yesterday as the highest Tyger medal was below the best Galion card.

Galion scores were: Bailor 88, Ernst 95, Dayton 102 and Hardin 110.

Association Clubs Bunched In Race

(By Associated Press)

If the first two weeks' play is any criterion, the American Association race this season will be closer than the next minute.

The circuit battle is now two weeks old, but two games separate first and seventh place clubs.

The Kansas City Blues notched their fifth victory in a row yesterday, an 11 to 6 decision over Indianapolis while Louisville was losing to Milwaukee again, 4 to 3.

Field of 10 or 11 Face Barrier In Kentucky Derby

Owner of Market Wise Threatens To Scratch Wood Memorial Winner

By ORLO ROBERTSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—Months of minute preparations ended for the pick of the nation's three-year-old thoroughbreds today as they brought their $75,000 argument to Churchill Downs' classic mile and quarter for the 67th running of the Kentucky Derby.

Eleven horses, 10 colts and a lone gelding, were named overnight for the richest Derby since the little red horse, Aristides, started this growing American madness in 1875. There was a possibility, however, that only 10 would parade to the barrier at 5:45 p. m. (E. S. T.)

Lou Tufano, Jamaica, N. Y., paving contractor, said that he planned to scratch Market Wise, Wood Memorial winner, unless rain softened the racing strip as he feared the hard, paste board track would cause permanent injury to his colt's already none too good foot.

Col. Matt Winn, president of the Downs predicted a record smashing attendance of close to 100,000 with $2,000,000 pouring through the mutuel machines for the first time since $2,096,613 was wagered in 1926.

There probably is no other sporting event that so completely takes over a city as does the Derby. From far and near came a cross section of American life to pay homage to King Thoroughbred. Prices in hotels and restaurants skyrocketed.

The race itself was so wide open that one man's opinion was as good as another.

Royce Martin's Our Boots, battling the jinx that has kept any Belmont Futurity winner from ever capturing the Derby, Charles S. (Lucky) Howard's Porter's Cap and Warren Wright's whacky Whirlaway came in for the bulk of the support but there was no standout.

Early odds quoted Our Boots at 2 to 1, Porter's Cap at 5 to 2 and Whirlaway at 5 to 1 but there was a strong probability that the Martin and Howard representatives would end up mighty near co-choices. This corner casts his vote for Porter's Cap. A son of The Porter, one of America's foremost distance breeding sires, the Cap showed he could come from behind or run in front in capturing the Santa Anita Derby and Chesapeake stakes.

Our Boots is by the sprint-producing sire, Bull Dog, but he may be the exception to the rule and carry his speed the full Derby route. Whirlaway, an offspring of the English Derby winner, Blenheim II, also has route-running bloodlines but Eddie Arcaro will have his work cut for him if he keeps the Wright speedster straight while rounding the corners.

The second flight is composed of high class performers, any one of whom may upset the favorites. It includes Mrs. Vera S. Bragg's Blue Pair at 8-1; Robert J. Kleberg, jr.'s fast striding Dispose at 10-1; J. Frederick Byers' Robert Morris at 12-1, and Mrs. Louise Palladino's Little Beans at 15-1.

Probable odds on the others range all the way from 18-1 quoted against Market Wise to 60-1 at which E. F. Woodward's Valdina Paul is held. Cleveland Putman's Swain is considered to have no better than a 40 to 1 chance unless it comes up mud while Hugh Nesbitt's Staretor, the gelding, is held at 50 to 1.

Hurler Hit By Batted Ball

Braves Rookie Really Knocked From Box.

Along about noon out at the Fairground yesterday, Fred Wollfert, who is hoping to land a pitching job with the Mansfield Braves, was tossing 'em up in batting practice.

Manager Alex Clowson of Mansfield's Ohio State league Braves heeded their advice. But Wollfert threw one more pitch before returning.

That one pitch nearly proved disastrous. The batter (name unknown) hit one back at Wollfert a mile a minute. It struck the big flinger on the right knee. He went down in a heap.

"That's one boy that was actually knocked out of the box," Bradley exclaimed.

Wollfert got up, tested his knee, and limped around the park. The Cleveland boy has a sore knee today to remind him of his experience, but the injury is not serious.

The injury sustained by Wollfert was the first of two to mark yesterday's drill at the Fairground. Catcher Tim Mangan took a bad hopper on the right temple shortly after the Woolfert incident, but shook it off.

However, teammates expected to see a colored orb blossom in the vicinity of Mangan's right eye today as practice sessions were resumed at 11 a. m.

These incidents highlighted yesterday's workout which marked the first extended batting drill of the new season. All of the infielders and outfielders reported for yesterday's drill except First Baseman Harry Siegbert and Third Baseman Dick Morse. The reason for their delay is not known to Braves' officials.

Deadline for filing of eligibility lists for teams in Mansfield softball leagues this summer has been continued until next Wednesday night.

Teams may obtain blanks at the Y. M. C. A. and must have them on file with Don Cram at the "Y" by next Wednesday, President Joe Lesch of the Mansfield Softball Commission said today.

Albatrosses Are Newest Favorites At Chicago Zoo

CHICAGO —(INS)— Butch and Oscar today vied with the pandas for popularity honors at the Brookfield zoo.

Butch and Oscar, the only live albatrosses in captivity, were presented to the zoo by the Leo Mandels who recently returned to Chicago after an expedition to the Galapagos Islands.

Other specimens presented to the zoo included a booby—a bird—and 11 penguins.

Among the 200 species of fishes collected for the Field Museum of Natural History was a devilfish, 12 feet long and weighing a ton, which the Chicago department store magnate said "towed our boat five hours before he got tired and we were able to tow him to shore and shoot him."

ATTENDING CAMP

Girl Scouts From City Leave For Week-End Near Laurelville.

Mansfield senior Girl Scouts are being represented by six girls of Troop 5, and their leader, Mrs. Richard Fensch, at the Senior Girl Scout camp in Ross Hocking park near Laurelville, over the week-end.

The program will be attended by Kathryn Ann Schafer, Charlotte Collins, Janice Carter, Kathryn Ann Fensch, Eileen Schuler and Maxine Hawk.

A Flitch of bacon was annually awarded to couples in Dunmow, Essex, England, who had no differences for a year and a day.

WEATHER KEEPS REDS AND BRAVES IDLE

BOSTON—If wet grounds and fortyish temperatures which spoiled yesterday's game don't recur, the Cincinnati Reds and Boston Braves hold their first 1941 get-together today.

Paul Derringer, who set Casey Stengel's boys down in four of six last season, opposes Jim Tobin who beat the Reds in his only 1940 chances.

ONTARIO CLUB OPENS SEASON TOMORROW

Ontario ball club will open the season at Lucas Sunday against the Lucas Merchants.

Dean Dawson who has been on the Braves' squad for the past week is expected to be in the best condition for the day. Petie Beer will also see some use on the mound.

All players are asked to report to the Lucas field not later than 2 p. m.

CONNIE MACK

Venerable Connie Mack, still the manager of the Philadelphia Athletics after all these years, watches the Indians play in Cleveland on an open date for his team. As usual, Mack holds scorecard and pencil.

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

Snow storms and cold which hit many sections of the country in early November of last year did a lot of damage to upland birds. It is estimated that 10,000 pheasants succumbed in Martin County, Minn., alone.

Never try to scoop up a fish with a landing net. Instead, lower the net quietly into the water, play the fish over it, then lift up. You'll lose far fewer fish this season if you do it this way.

Birds, resident in the United States, that wildlife experts say are on the verge of extinction, are bald eagle, sandhill crane, Ross' goose, greater snow goose, California condor, sage grouse, Attwater's prairie chicken, and white tail, Everglades, Mississippi and swallow-tail kites.

Fishing's good at Mifflin Lake, many anglers have reported . . . catches of bass, blue gills and crappies affording great sport. Many fishermen say that taking crappies on the fly rod makes mighty sporting fishing and if you want to try it, Yuncker's can fit you out with just the outfit you need.

Two Texas hunters, last season, fired simultaneously at a big male javelina from spots 25 yards apart. Their bullets entered the javelina at exactly the same point, neither knew the other had fired and each thought he had done the killing. Not until the boar was skinned did it develop that though there was only one point of entrance, the emerging bullets had made holes in the other side of the carcass a half inch apart. E. M. Dealey, an official of the Dallas News, was one of the hunters, the other, Donald Bennet.

Need a tackle box? Then you're in luck, because Yuncker's have a "buy" that's hard to beat. It's a strong metal box, with rounded corners, watertight construction, with double tray and lock with key. Here's the surprise: it sells for only $1.29.

Deer hunters in Venango County, Pa., last season were stupefied to come across a herd of animals with white bodies and scarlet horns. The mystery was cleared up by a huge hand-lettered sign: "Hunters — don't shoot my goats please. I've painted their horns red. Their bodies are white. Please don't shoot my goats."

JARED MANSFIELD ANNUAL MEETING

AT THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Jared Mansfield chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the Women's Club last night Mrs. Stanley Richardson was re-elected regent for the coming year. She will be assisted by Mrs. Brinkerhoff Spear, vice regent; Mrs. John Shook, chaplain; Mrs. R. W. Jones, secretary; Mrs. Edwin L. Balyeat, treasurer; Mrs. K. E. Buhr, registrar; Miss Jeannette Martin, historian and librarian; Mrs. A. E. Courtney, guardian of the colors; and Mrs. A. C. Tuttle, member of the board of mangement for four years.

Following the patriotic opening Mrs. Shook, chaplain, led the devotions. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. George J. Kochenderfer and Mrs. S. D. Hoover.

During the business session which was presided over by the regent, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Barr, a real granddaughter, was welcomed as a member from Olentangy chapter, Galion, Ohio. The group agreed to contribute to the Community Fund and planned to place a wreath on the doughboy statue in Central Park on Memorial Day. Mrs. George Hughes, chairman of approved schools, told of sending a large box of clothing to Crossnore school in North Carolina.

Reports of the 50th annual Continental Congress were made. Mrs. H. L. Ackerman reported the National Defense program which preceded the opening session. Those reporting were Mrs. Richardson, Miss Cloude Blake and Mrs. C. H. Henkel, member of the House Committee.

The next meeting will be June 14, Flag Day, with Mrs. Shook. The affair will be a covered-dish picnic at noon followed by installation of officers. Mrs. A. J. Fraser, Mrs. Howard McClure and Mrs. Jones will assist.

Mrs. E. R. Jenkins Named Head of Bible Group

Members of the Neighborhood Bible club met at the home of Mrs. C. H. Henkel, 777 Woodhill road, Friday afternoon for their annual election of officers. Mrs. E. R. Jenkins was chosen to head the group and will be assisted by Mrs. J. R. Turner, vice president; Mrs. R. E. McCombs, secretary; Mrs. D. L. Arehart, assistant secretary; Mrs. Hobart Cashell, treasurer.

Fourteen attended the meeting which was in charge of Mrs. George Hoover, retiring president. It was planned to study the book of Hebrews for the coming year. Devotions were led by Mrs. Arehart and Mrs. William Nusbaum and Mrs. Earl Frankeberger led the lesson study.

The last meeting of the year will be held May 16 at the Susie Janis home, Park avenue west road, for a luncheon at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Bert Gettles will conduct the lesson study.

Plan for Lilac Tea on May 14 At Park Pavilion

Members of the Cottage Garden club met Friday and planned for the Lilac Tea to be given at the North Lake park pavilion on May 14 in observance of their gift of lilac shrubs to the city on the border of North Lake park. A program has been planned for this invitational event which is in charge of Mrs. S. A. Wentz and her committee. The program is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Stanley Richardson, Shepard road, was hostess at her home yesterday, assisted by Mrs. A. C. Tuttle. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock with tulips decorating the table. Mrs. Howard Smith and Mrs. C. F. Sheriff presided at the buffet board. The business session was in charge of Mrs. Sheriff and roll call was answered on "Name of Herbs." Mrs. Tuttle spoke on "Horticulture" and Mrs. S. A. Wentz gave the paper on "Herb and Herb Gardening."

The next meeting on May 16 will be at the home of Mrs. C. C. Blair, 408 Chevy Chase road, with Mrs. Baxter as associate hostess.

Priscillian Club Members Hold Meeting

Mrs. John Shook, 42 Shady Lane, was hostess to 14 members of the Priscillian club and two guests, Mrs. L. Decker and Mrs. R. A. Dauber of Warren, Friday afternoon at her home. Luncheon was served the group at 1 o'clock at a table attractive with spring flowers. During the business session a nominating committee was appointed which is composed of Mrs. W. P. Close, Mrs. L. H. Beam and Mrs. W. H. Gugler.

The last meeting of the year will be held May 16 at the Women's club with Mrs. J. W. Galbraith as hostess. Election of officers will be held at that time.

Mary Hartman To Head Eagle Auxiliary Group

Mary Hartman was elected president of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Eagle lodge when the annual business session was held Friday evening at the hall. Others chosen for the coming term include: Thelma Fisher, vice president; Josephine Dockerty, chaplain; Donna Berg, secretary; Marie Herrold, treasurer; Alice Stutz, inside guard; and Kathryn Stutz, outside guard.

Plans were made for the losers in a recent contest to give a dinner party at the Eagle hall on May 22. It was also decided to hold formal initiation of 20 candidates on May 16 at the hall.

Following the services there will be a business session and luncheon in charge of Marie Herrold and her committee.

Mother and Daughter Dresses Smart

Mother and daughter dresses, mother and daughter shoes—a family affair style note, stronger than ever for summer. The dresses are peasant-styled sheer cottons, polka-dotted and piped in red. The shoes, washable moccasins with new walled toes and wide five-toned sole-to-sole bands, come in several colors as well as white.

Miss Mary Salsgiver Weds Herman Weiland

A BACKGROUND of palms, ferns and beauty baskets of spring flowers formed a pretty setting for the wedding at 9:30 this morning for Miss Mary Salsgiver of Mansfield and Herman Weiland, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Weiland, 356 Lexington avenue. The single ring service was read at the St. Peter's Catholic church by Father John Flynn in the presence of friends and relatives.

Attired in a powder blue redingote with navy accessories and a corsage of yellow roses, the bride approached the altar. Her matron of honor, Mrs. John Weiland, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, wore a rose suit with pale blue accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

After the service a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bridegroom's mother with 20 in attendance. Appointments were in white and a large wedding cake centered the table. Later the young couple will leave for a short wedding trip. When they return they will make their home at 180 Lexington avenue, Apt. 4.

Mrs. Weiland has been employed at the Mansfield-Leland hotel and Mr. Weiland at the Ohio Brass company.

Missionary Society Meets For Program

Mrs. N. A. Pluck, 189 Bartley avenue, entertained members of the Lucretia Hedges Missionary society of the First Methodist church Friday evening at her home. Mrs. George Hout was in charge of the program and led the devotions. Group singing was also enjoyed. Eighteen members and one guest, Mrs. H. C. Bridges were present. Mrs. Paul Ackerman gave a book review on "War In China" and Mrs. Foster Stough reported on the district meeting held in Ontario last Tuesday.

A routine business session was led by Miss Ethlyn Auten. At a late hour, the hostess served refreshments. The date and place of the next meeting will be announced later.

Woodville Social Club Has Meeting

Woodville Social club members met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. C. Addelsperger, Woodville road. Associate hostess was Mrs. W. G. Callender. Thirty-one members and two guests, Mrs. John Day and Miss Wanda Addelsperger, were in attendance.

Bingo was diversion and prizes were awarded. Mrs. Harold Mast, president, conducted the business meeting. Luncheon was served at the close of the session. The next meeting will be held June 6.

Annual Spring Concert Given At High School

Members of the Johnny Appleseed Junior high school band gave their annual spring concert at the school auditorium last evening with a large attendance. The varied program was under the direction of J. Merton Holcombe and 115 young people participated.

The program was as follows: march, "Blaze of Glory," band; tone poem, "Sunset Reverie," band; march, "Swinging Along," band; flute solo, "Little Princess," by Hazel Hockett, accompanied by Dolores Faust; Medley, brass choir; march, "The Squadron," band; "Gavotte - Naive," double clarinet quartet, leader, Dolores Faust; banjo solo, by Max Morrison, accompanied by Charles Champion; trumpet trio, James Smith, Charles Jones, Mary M. Young, accompanied by Katherine Schaller; clarinet solo, "Long, Long Ago," by Joann Beelman, accompanied by Jane Nusbaum; familiar melodies, reed choir; march, "East Meets West," band; accordion solo, by Marcia Cook; saxophone solo, "Saxopeal," by Donald Chapman, accompanied by Virginia Osbun; tap dance, by Richard Stafford, accompanied by Juanita Hillman; piano solo, "Paderewski's Minuet," by Dolores Faust; trombone swing, band, featuring Murray Swihart, Janet Perez, Mary Lou Kubic; "America," trumpet ensemble.

Plans were made to hold the band club party at the school cafeteria May 6 at 6 p. m. with a covered dish supper. Mrs. C. W. Benninghoff and Mrs. Ruben Neal, chairman, are in charge of arrangements.

Mission Members Elect Officers At Meeting Here

Mrs. Joe Bertka was elected to head the Gamma Mu Sigma missionary society of the First Christian church when the members met recently at the home of Mrs. Clayton Frank, 208 Rhein avenue. Other officers named at the time were vice president, Miss Ruth Swaidner, secretary, Mrs. Bruce Rogers and treasurer, Miss Belle Bainter.

One guest, Mrs. Bertha Fee, was present. The topic of the discussion was "Chinese Needs" and was presented by Mrs. Al Broillier, Mrs. William Droz and Mrs. Homer Clark. Plans were made to hold a Mother-Daughter banquet in the church parlors May 16. A joint meeting will be held with the Mt. Vernon society Sunday afternoon. All members wishing to attend this session are asked to meet at the church at 1:30 o'clock. The next meeting will be held June 6 at the home of Mrs. Homer Clark, 169 Rae avenue.

ENTERTAIN CLUB.

Mrs. Rose Briich, Mendota street, entertained members of the Why-Not-Be-There club at her home recently. Bridge was played and the prizes won by Mrs. Anton Schadek. Lunch was served at a long table decorated with pink and yellow appointments. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Dan Nagle, Wolfe avenue, May 15.

MISS ANN BESCH AND FRED KINKEL MARRY

Quiet Service Read at St. Peter's Parsonage This Morning for Mansfield Couple Who Will Leave Today for Florida Trip.

IN A QUIET CEREMONY this morning at 10:15 Miss Ann Besch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Besch, sr., 282 Grace street, became the bride of Frederick Kinkel, jr., at the parsonage of the St. Peter's Catholic church. Father James G. Dwyer read the service in the presence of the immediate families. Mr. Kinkel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kinkel, sr., 366 Shepard road.

The bride wore a frock of purple and chartreuse with purple and toast colored accessories. Her corsage was of orchids. Miss Catherine Baki attended the bride, wearing a slate blue suit with rose and beige accessories. Nicholas Besch, jr., brother of the bride, was best man.

Later in the day the couple will leave for a trip to Florida. For traveling Mrs. Kinkel has selected a blue suit with beige accessories. On their return they will reside at 441 Overlook road.

Miss Baki Will Wed Mr. Bonati On May 28 Here

Announcement was made of the approaching marriage of Miss Catherine Baki, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Baki, 468 Pearl street and Fred Bonati, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bonati, sr., Hillsboro, Ill., at a recent meeting of the S. L. C. club. The wedding date has been set for May 28, the place to be announced later.

Cards were the diversion of the evening. Prizes were awarded Mrs. John Herlihy, Mrs. Nick Nagle and Miss Jerry Madden. The next meeting will be held May 15 at the home of Mrs. John Herlihy, 219 Walter avenue. Miss Helen Austin will serve as associate hostess.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"NO MY angel," Dicky replied airily. "I expect to be right on the job back there to see that our little hell-cat, Carolyn, gets safely landed back in Weirhampton."

"But how can you?" I asked, bewildered. "You're on this through train to New York! You won't be in until midnight."

"Granted all those facts," my husband admitted. "But there also is a through train starting from New York about one o'clock—I've checked on it—and I can get a sleeper. So I'll be in good shape tomorrow morning to tackle anything in the way of gangsters who may want to intercept our journey, and snatch little Carolyn away from us."

"You've thought of everything," I commented admiringly. "But what about the Brixtons? Won't they be worried and mystified when you don't come back?"

"Neither a worry nor a mysti," Dicky answered complacently. "You see when I went into the station, ostensibly to get a bill changed, remember?—"

"Yes, I remember," I assented tensely.

Placing the Brixtons.

"Well, I didn't need change any more than I do another wallet for the bills I don't possess. But I did need time and opportunity to tell the station agent a few things. He's a good fellow, and I gave him my spare bunch of keys to the car. He promised to have it sent to a garage, and have the garage man bring it back to meet my train tomorrow morning. He also said he would telephone Sam Brixton, telling him that I had gone to New York with you, but would be back at the Brixton home in time for breakfast, which I will."

"As your nephews would put it, you certainly 'put one over on your wife,' I said, trying to divest my voice of chagrin.

"I had to," he retorted defensively. "For you sure were holding out on me. And while I'm on the subject, you might as well come clean on something else which has been buzzing around by bean. Are you sure you reported all that conversation between Carolyn and the gangster, which Ronald overheard?"

"No, I didn't," I told him steadily. "The thing the gangster wanted most was the number of my compartment on the train tonight. Carolyn was to find out what it was and tell him on his second telephone call."

"I thought so," my husband said, added witheringly, "It's a wonder you didn't write it out for Carolyn, so she wouldn't make any mistake when she next talked to her gangster boy friend."

"I don't blame you for thinking so," I said meekly, for indeed I was in the depths of self-abasement over my folly. "But I wasn't quite that bad. Instead Ronald and I saw to it that Carolyn didn't get a chance to ask you about the compartment. I told her that I didn't have any."

Dicky caught me to him with an impulsive hug, and laughed as he rumpled my hair teasingly, and then kissed me.

In New York.

"You don't need to eat any more humble pie," he said. "Your tyrant-husband is appeased. But, for the love of old Abraham and all the rest of the prophets, don't try to save me trouble and danger any more where you're concerned. That's a job I took on many years ago, promising to take care of you, right in front of the minister, too. You don't want to make me out a liar and a slacker, do you?"

"I'll be good," I promised him.

"See that you are," he said. "And now, let's 'talk of other things.' You have enough horrors waiting for you when you get in."

He gave me no chance to indulge any fears or qualms; instead, kept me a fascinated listener—there is no more interesting talker than Dicky when he chooses—and the trip seemed short indeed until we left the train and came down the ramp.

We caught sight of Noel before he saw us, and Dicky's hand tightened on my arm.

"Watch your step!" he adjured me. "Something's wrong! Pipe Noel's face."

CHAPTER IX

But within a few days, she discovered that her finances were in an even worse condition than she could ever have imagined. Creditors beset her from every direction. The very house she was living in was so heavily mortgaged that it would have to go along with everything else. Even if she succeeded in borrowing enough funds to save it, she would have no way of repaying such a large sum. If she didn't let it go now, it would have to be lost later—unless she married money.

She never, she decided, could bring herself to marry entirely for money, although loving Hal as she did, it would be most convenient to marry him. However, that wonderful event could not take place until he was free—a year or more from now. By that time—even long before—her pocketbook would be decidedly flat. She was as poor as the proverbial church mouse at this minute, even though she had to pinch herself to believe it.

Susan Stone did little but cry and bewail her bad luck. She was too filled with self-pity even to lecture Raye about Hal Bedford. Raye wondered if auntie wouldn't even be reconciled to seeing her niece marry any divorced man who had wealth enough to make it an object. Money had become auntie's god. After all, auntie was to be pitied.

It was Raye who discharged the faithful servants, many of whom had been with her for years. It was Raye who answered unnecessarily abusive telephone calls from tradespeople whom she had never had any intention of fleecing. It was Raye who answered the calls from many amazed, curious friends, who had always thought of her as a symbol of wealth.

It was Raye who anxiously searched for and found a neat little furnished apartment where Aunt Susan could sleep in the in-a-door bed and she on the sofa. It was Raye who packed her own trunks after Celia had gone, and helped Aunt Susan to pack hers.

But after looking over the new accommodations that Raye offered, it was Aunt Susan who went into hysterics and bluntly refused to set foot in them—that is, permanently.

"I couldn't live cooped up in such a place—you should realize that, Raye," said Susan Stone emphatically.

"But it's the best small apartment I could find," Raye told her aunt worriedly. "You know we have to live quite—well, very differently now."

"Oh, well—you're young—you can manage in such a place. The mere shame of living on that commonplace street would ruin my health. I simply cannot bring myself to do it!"

"I believe you'll have to," came from Raye disgustedly.

"Hardly. I'm leaving this town for good."

Raye was aghast. "But, auntie—you can't go away! You're all—all I have! We've been together so many years! Why, auntie—I can't see how you could do such a thing!"

"It's my love for you, Raye, that's making me do it. I can't think of being a burden to you—and a way has—has opened for me to live in Boston."

"Boston?"

"Yes—my old friend Clarissa Bell has asked me to come to live with her. She's been begging me for years to help her with a little specialty shop she owns. As far as I can learn, she's done fairly well with it. So we'll make out—somehow."

Raye's head was in a dizzy whirl. She knew now that she would be far happier alone than with the constantly complaining Aunt Susan around, yet the way she was going was a disagreeable surprise. She had thought auntie would stick to the finish.

Raye was forced to admit now that there was nothing to do but pick up her courage and try to find some way to support herself. Surely she couldn't be so very different from other people to be a living for one person, herself.

The newspapers had played up enormously Mawson Duke's suicide and his thefts over the years from all. Some fortune. It was one of the biggest scandals that had ever broken in Wilville. Raye's old friends continued to drop in to see her or to telephone in order to get the latest details. The sympathy they offered seemed genuine enough, but Raye thought it lacked something. She attempted to persuade herself that she was too upset to be satisfied with anything but still the uncomfortable impression lingered.

Rosalind Grinner invited Raye to go to Lake Louise for a month and Cissy Bloome had lovely plans for a cross-country trip in her luxurious new station wagon. Invitations for gay parties buzzed around Raye as usual, but she felt as if she could never again be light-hearted enough to take part in jolly social affairs, and refused them all.

Of one thing she was certain. None of these people could be approached for a job. They would, even now, laugh at the very idea of the high-spirited, beautifully groomed Raye ever having to work for a living. No—making these frivolous old friends of hers see reason wasn't in the books. She'd have to strike out cold and talk some stranger into giving her a job. What kind of job, she hadn't the faintest notion.

In the midst of all this hubbub, Aunt Susan left for Boston. She had parted tearfully from Raye who now was not greatly impressed, could never be again, by any avowal of affection toward her that Aunt Susan ever made.

When Raye, seated in a taxi, rode for the last time out the picturesque winding drive of her lovely Wilville home, her eyes were blinded with tears. She fully realized now what had happened to her. As the taxi headed down the broad avenue past stately homes built by Wilville's financially powerful, her former neighbors, she wondered bleakly what would ever become of her, now that she was strictly on her own.

She hadn't heard from Hal Bedford since that day she telephoned him and told him of Duke's suicide and that her fortune was gone. That was all of two weeks ago and Ruthie must have gone out of town long since. She tried to make excuses for him in her mind, tried not to feel too possessive toward a man upon whom she actually had no claim. At any rate, she would not call him again and if they happened to meet, she would be very cool to him. Perhaps though, Ruthie had, as Hal had expressed it, brought things to a showdown and he was only being cautious. But the whole business hurt.

However, for a few days she was so busy geting settled in her new apartment that she had little time to brood over Hal or anyone else.

Then unexpectedly, he telephoned her and the world was really beautiful again.

'Haven't meant to neglect you, darling," he told her quickly. 'I've been trying to get matters straightened out. How have you been, dear?"

There was that tender insistence in his deep voice again that always made her heart beat faster. No famous symphony orchestra had ever stirred her to greater heights.

"Oh, fine. But I've missed you, Hal, wondered how—how matters were progressing."

"I'll tell you all about it tonight when I see you. The coast is clear. Isn't that swell?"

"Why—yes," she said, a little hesitantly.

But somehow this being the lovelight for a summer bachelor did not wholly appeal to her. There was too much at stake.

It was not long after Raye's conversation with Hal that Ruthie Bedford knocked on Raye's apartment door.

The astonished Raye greeted her with, 'Why, I thought you were in Atlantic City!"

It was the wrong thing to say. Raye realized the instant it came out.

"I presume Hal mentioned my leaving," Ruthie said, pointedly. "Well, I decided I'd be in no hurry to go—I had a few errands to attend to—first."

"Yes, Hal did say you were taking Toots to a cooler place. I was sorry to hear about her illness," said the wondering Raye.

"Were you?" Ruthie was in the tiny living room now.

"Won't you sit down?" Raye was decidedly nervous. She had endured enough the last few days to upset her and now this unexpected appearance of the angry-looking Ruthie was the last straw. But she added quickly, "It's so nice to see you, Ruthie."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

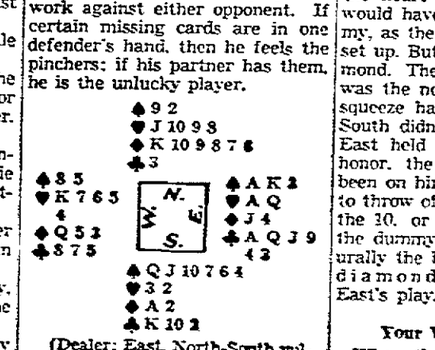
SOMEBODY IS SQUEEZED

Occasionally a hand comes along with the possibilities of a squeeze play against one defender or another. The declarer may have to take his choice as to which he will try to squeeze, making the best estimate he can of the location of important cards held by the opposition. But better still is the planning of the final combination in such a way that your play will work against either opponent. If certain missing cards are in one defender's hand, then he feels the pinchers; if his partner has them, he is the unlucky player.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	Dbl	1 ♥	2 ♦
Dble

This was rubber bridge, and South didn't want to be set two tricks if he could help it. Careful handling of his cards limited the loss to one. West led the club 8 to the A. East laid down his top two trumps, then the heart A and Q. When he returned the club Q to the K, South was already down a trick, so figured out the pattern to avoid losing any more.

Holding to his club 10, he knew East would have to guard the J. He knew West would have to guard the heart J with the K. So neither East nor West could safely retain three diamonds. Whichever had three of the outstanding ones, South could squeeze him. So he laid down all of his remaining trumps. When he finally led the last one, the spade 7, he retained in dummy the heart J and three diamonds, keeping the club 10 and two diamonds in his own hand.

Of course, if West had played the heart K on that, a diamond would have been shed from dummy, as the heart J would then be set up. But West threw off a diamond. The dummy discard then was the now useless heart J. The squeeze had already worked, but South didn't yet know it. For, if East held three diamonds to an honor, the squeeze would have been on him. He would have had to throw off his club J, setting up the 10, or a diamond, setting up the dummy's third diamond. Naturally the hand finished with three diamond tricks regardless of East's play.

Your Week-End Lesson.

When the wrong opponent has made an opening lead, you have the option under the rules of treating the card as a "penalty card," subject to play at the first legal opportunity, or telling the correct leader what suit he must lead. Usually the second of these penalties is inflicted. Can you think of a situation in which the other penalty is to be preferred? And can you set up a hand to exemplify it?

"I get a kick," says Mansfield Braves Business Manager Oscar Ruhl, "every time I see that name 'Blackburn' heading the batting order for Indianapolis.

"You'd never have thought, looking at Wayne Blackburn the first day he hit Mansfield, that he'd be playing ball a few years later in the Association, or any other place outside a cow pasture.

"What the boy lacked in appearance he more than made up in confidence.

"'I'm a baseball player,' he informed one and all at Westinghouse when he showed up there one morning looking for a job.

"You couldn't prove it to look at him, so there was nothing left for Manager Frank Emmer of the Westies to do but pour him into a monkey suit and try him out.

"And the kid looked pretty good out there at second base, and made a couple hits. 'I might as well keep him for a while,' said Emmer, 'he'll be good for a few laughs anyhow.'

"But there was nothing funny about the kid's ball playing. He not only won a regular job, but before the season was over he was leading the team in hitting.

"A poof hitter he is and always was. One of those fellows who is always popping pitches just beyond the infield and winding up on first with a hit.

"Pitchers in every league he's played in have hated to see him come to bat. They knew he'd be poofing one just out of reach of any fielder.

"So the Westies spotted the boy to a hair cut, and gave him five dollars to go uptown and buy a pair of shoes. He bought a pair of shoes, but darned if he didn't bring back three dollars change.

"It was no wonder they doubted he was a ball player, even after they saw him play."

* * *

So the Westies were happy they didn't spurn
The pleas of hill-billy Wayne Blackburn.

Winning Streaks Mount

Consecutive Victory Plan Becomes Custom.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THIS spring is setting some kind of a record in winning streaks in the major leagues—if not in length, then certainly in breadth.

The Brooklyn Dodgers dazzled the baseball world for a while by running their string to nine games. Now, before the shine has worn off this feat, it is endangered by both the Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Cardinals.

The Indians, American league leaders, have won eight in a row and the National league pace-setting Cards have taken seven straight.

Cleveland, considered a light-hitting combination at the start of the season, has blossomed out as an array of hitters and uncorked 56 safeties in its last four games.

This power helped the veteran Mel Harder get credit for his third straight victory yesterday, 7-3 against the Boston Red Sox. Jeff Heath hit a triple with the bases loaded, Hal Trosky made three hits, including a home run, and Ken Keltner smacked three for extra bases.

The Cardinals punched out a 4-2 triumph over the Phillies yesterday with another of their young pitchers, Howard Krist, turning in a five-hit performance.

The Dodgers showed no signs of a letdown after Cincinnati's interruption of their winning streak, as they crushed the Chicago Cubs 7-3. Whitlow Wyatt hurled four-hit ball for his fourth straight victory against one defeat.

The New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates played the season's first tie game, 7-7, yielding to darkness after 13 innings.

The Washington Senators and St. Louis Browns came up with another marathon which Washington won 7-4 in 12 innings. The payoff came on Rick Ferrell's single with the bases loaded followed by Pitcher Sid Hudson's double.

The Chicago White Sox cooled off the New York Yankees, 8-1. Ted Lyons held them to five hits.

The Detroit Tigers kept their artillery white hot by reeling off 17 hits to beat the Philadelphia Athletics 15-1 behind the seven-hit hurling of Schoolboy Rowe.

Providents Open Season

Girls' Softball Team Meets Elyria Sunday.

Mansfield's state championship girls' softball team, the Mansfield Provident Loans, open their season tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at Johns park against the Elyria Franks Bakery.

Last year the Mansfield club defeated Elyria 3-2 in the finals of the district tournament, and then borrowed two of the Elyria player for future play in the state and national meets.

Word comes from Elyria that the Bakery girls have an improved ball club this season, but the Providents have not been caught napping in that respect. They also have several new players who are counted on to strengthen the lineup.

Mansfield's starting lineup tomorrow probably will be: J. Herrick 2b, M. Holda ss, D. Schuster 3b, E. Jocha 1b, M. Tipul lf, M. Bessemer rs, O. Whiteman rf, L. Schaffer cf, F. Biddinger c, and either Frances Clark Knapp or F. Casper p. Reserves include D. Peters cf, and B. Shelton rf.

Kentucky Classic Raced on This Track

Indians Seek Ninth In Row

Al Milnar Gets Task Of Continuing Streak.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— It was up to Southpaw Al Milnar today to protect a winning streak that was knocking on the door of nine straight as the Cleveland Indians met the Boston Red Sox in the second game of their two-game series.

Leading the league by two full games the Indians made it eight in a row yesterday with a 7-3 decision over the visitors, as Mel Harder furnished additional evidence that his return to top form in early season contests will have a great effect on the tribe's pennant chances.

Although he gave way to Joe Heving in the sixth inning, the veteran right hander granted only four hits, only two of them being the solid, unquestionable variety. Heving took satisfaction in holding his ex-Beantown mates effectively the rest of the game, with Harder getting credit for the victory.

The Indians, led by Hal Trosky, with a homer and two singles, and Jeff Heath with a triple and two singles, got to Dick Newsome and Tom Judd for 11 hits and 22 bases.

Mike Ryba, veteran man-of-all-positions, was to take the mound for Boston today.

Hager Shoots One Under Par

Paces Tyger Golfers To Second Victory.

Al Hager blasted a sparkling 71 over Possum Run golf course yesterday afternoon to pace Coach Oberlander's Mansfield high divot diggers to their second straight victory of the season, a 16-0 shutout of Galion.

A strong wind appeared to bother Al's teammates and their opponents, but it made no nevermind to the Hammerin' Hager as he traveled down the middle and up to the can to tour the layout in one under par figures.

The other Mansfielders were slightly over their fine scores of earlier in the week at Mt. Vernon but they didn't need to be so good yesterday as the highest Tyger medal was below the best Galion card.

Galion scores were: Bailor 88, Ernst 95, Dayton 102 and Hardin 110.

Field of 10 or 11 Face Barrier In Kentucky Derby

Owner of Market Wise Threatens To Scratch Wood Memorial Winner

By ORLO ROBERTSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—Months of minute preparations ended for the pick of the nation's three-year-old thoroughbreds today as they brought their $75,000 argument to Churchill Downs' classic mile and quarter for the 67th running of the Kentucky Derby.

Eleven horses, 10 colts and a lone gelding, were named overnight for the richest Derby since the little red horse, Aristides, started this growing American madness in 1875. There was a possibility, however, that only 10 would parade to the barrier at 5:45 p. m. (E. S. T.)

Lou Tufano, Jamaica, N. Y., paving contractor, said that he planned to scratch Market Wise, Wood Memorial winner, unless rain softened the racing strip as he feared the hard, paste board track would cause permanent injury to his colt's already none too good foot.

Meanwhile, the grooms at the track threatened to strike unless the management agreed to pay $10 for leading a winning horse over to the paddock.

Col. Matt Winn, president of the Downs predicted a record smashing attendance of close to 100,000 with $2,000,000 pouring through the mutuel machines for the first time since $2,096,613 was wagered in 1926.

There probably is no other sporting event that so completely takes over a city as does the Derby. From far and near came a cross section of American life to pay homage to King Thoroughbred. Prices in hotels and restaurants skyrocketed.

The race itself was so wide open that one man's opinion was as good as another.

Royce Martin's Our Boots, battling the jinx that has kept any Belmont Futurity winner from ever capturing the Derby, Charles S. (Lucky) Howard's Porter's Cap and Warren Wright's whacky Whirlaway came in for the bulk of the support but there was no standout.

Early odds quoted Our Boots at 2 to 1, Porter's Cap at 5 to 2 and Whirlaway at 5 to 1 but there was a strong probability that the Martin and Howard representatives would end up mighty near co-choices. This corner casts his vote for Porter's Cap. A son of The Porter, one of America's foremost distance breeding sires, the Cap showed he could come from behind or run in front in capturing the Santa Anita Derby and Chesapeake stakes.

Our Boots is by the sprint-producing sire, Bull Dog, but he may be the exception to the rule and carry his speed the full Derby route. Whirlaway, an offspring of the English Derby winner, Blenheim II, also has route-running bloodlines but Eddie Arcaro will have his work cut for him if he keeps the Wright speedster straight while rounding the corners.

The second flight is composed of high class performers, any one of whom may upset the favorites. It includes Mrs. Vera S. Bragg's Blue Pair at 8-1; Robert J. Kleberg, jr.'s fast striding Dispose at 10-1; J. Frederick Byers' Robert Morris at 12-1, and Mrs. Louise Palladino's Little Beans at 15-1.

Probable odds on the others range all the way from 18-1 quoted against Market Wise to 60-1 at which E. F. Woodward's Valdina Paul is held. Cleveland Putman's Swain is considered to have no better than a 40 to 1 chance unless it comes up mud while Hugh Nesbitt's Staretor, the gelding, is held at 50 to 1.

Hurler Hit By Batted Ball

Braves Rookie Really Knocked From Box.

Along about noon out at the Fairground yesterday, Fred Wollfert, who is hoping to land a pitching job with the Mansfield Braves, was tossing 'em up in batting practice.

Manager Alex Clowson of Mansfield's Ohio State league Braves heeded their advice. But Wollfert threw one more pitch before retiring.

That one pitch nearly proved disastrous. The batter (name unknown) hit one back at Wollfert a mile a minute. It struck the big flinger on the right knee. He went down in a heap.

"That's one boy that was actually knocked out of the box," Bradley exclaimed.

Wollfert got up, tested his knee, and limped around the park. The Cleveland boy has a sore knee today to remind him of his experience, but the injury is not serious.

The injury sustained by Wollfert was the first of two to mark yesterday's drill at the Fairground. Catcher Tim Mangan took a bad hopper on the right temple shortly after the Woolfert incident, but shook it off.

However, teammates expected to see a colored orb blossom in the vicinity of Mangan's right eye today as practice sessions were resumed at 11 a. m.

These incidents highlighted yesterday's workout, which marked the first extended batting drill of the new season. All of the infielders and outfielders reported for yesterday's drill except First Baseman Harry Siegbert and Third Baseman Dick Morse. The reason for their delay is not known to Braves' officials.

Deadline for filing of eligibility lists for teams in Mansfield softball leagues this summer has been continued until next Wednesday night.

Teams may obtain blanks at the Y. M. C. A. and must have them on file with Don Cram at the "Y" by next Wednesday, President Joe Lesch of the Mansfield Softball Commission said today.

Albatrosses Are Newest Favorites At Chicago Zoo

Butch and Oscar, the only live albatrosses in captivity, were presented to the zoo by the Leo Mandels who recently returned to Chicago after an expedition to the Galapagos Islands.

Other specimens presented to the zoo included a booby—a bird—and 11 penguins.

Among the 200 species of fishes collected for the Field Museum of Natural History was a devilfish, 12 feet long and weighing a ton, which the Chicago department store magnate said "towed our boat five hours before he got tired and we were able to tow him to shore and shoot him."

WEATHER KEEPS REDS AND BRAVES IDLE

BOSTON—If wet grounds and fortyish temperatures which spoiled yesterday's game don't recur, the Cincinnati Reds and Boston Braves hold their first 1941 get-together today.

Paul Derringer, who set Casey Stengel's boys down in four of six last season, opposes Jim Tobin who beat the Reds in his only 1940 chances.

ONTARIO CLUB OPENS SEASON TOMORROW

Ontario ball club will open the season at Lucas Sunday against the Lucas Merchants.

Dean Dawson who has been on the Braves' squad for the past week is expected to be in the best condition for the day. Petie Beer will also see some use on the mound.

All players are asked to report to the Lucas field not later than 2 p. m.

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

Snow storms and cold which hit many sections of the country in early November of last year did a lot of damage to upland birds. It is estimated that 10,000 pheasants succumbed in Martin County, Minn., alone.

* * *

Never try to scoop up a fish with a landing net. Instead, lower the net quietly into the water, play the fish over it, then lift up. You'll lose far fewer fish this season if you do it this way.

* * *

Birds, resident in the United States, that wildlife experts say are on the verge of extinction, are bald eagle, sandhill crane, Ross' goose, greater snow goose, California condor, sage grouse, Attwater's prairie chicken, and white tail, Everglades, Mississippi and swallow-tail kites.

* * *

Fishing's good at Mifflin Lake, many anglers have reported . . . catches of bass, blue gills and crappies affording great sport. Many fishermen say that taking crappies on the fly rod makes mighty sporting fishing and if you want to try it, Yuncker's can fit you out with just the outfit you need.

* * *

Two Texas hunters, last season, fired simultaneously at a big male javelina from spots 25 yards apart. Their bullets entered the javelina at exactly the same point, neither knew the other had fired and each thought he had done the killing. Not until the boar was skinned did it develop that though there was only one point of entrance, the emerging bullets had made holes in the other side of the carcass a half inch apart. E. M. Dealey, an official of the Dallas News, was one of the hunters, the other, Donald Bennet.

* * *

Spectacled eider ducks, normally great flyers, molt so severely in summer that their wings are useless and Eskimos can kill them wholesale with clubs.

* * *

Need a tackle box? Then you're in luck, because Yuncker's have a "buy" that's hard to beat. It's a strong metal box, with rounded corners, watertight construction, with double tray and lock with key. Here's the surprise: it sells for only $1.29.

* * *

Deer hunters in Venango County, Pa., last season were stupefied to come across a herd of animals with white bodies and scarlet horns. The mystery was cleared up by a huge hand-lettered sign: "Hunters — don't shoot my goats please. I've painted their horns red. Their bodies are white. Please don't shoot my goats."

STOCKS STEADY AT OPENING OF MARKET TODAY

On the upside were Santa Fe, Chrysler, Douglas, DuPont and Southern Pacific. Slightly lower were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Of prime interest to Wall Street was President Roosevelt's call to the defense industries to operate on a basis of "24 hours a day and seven days a week."

START ACTION ON TAX PLAN

defense program intended to protect our democracy is not going to make the rich richer and the poor poorer."

Without specifically listing sources from which an additional $3,500,000,000 could be collected, Mr. Roosevelt declared that additional taxes "should be based on the principle of ability to pay." He also recommended the federal revenue system be made "evasion-proof and so devised that every individual and every corporation will bear its fair share of the tax burden."

Then, without additional interpretation, he declared:

"The income tax cannot fix the liability of individuals and corporations with equity as long as the tax base is defined to exclude substantial and significant elements of income."

Some tax experts here thought the president might have reference to tax exemptions on public securities. Others observed that the sentence might point toward possible lowering of income tax exemptions.

Meanwhile, in the house ways and means committee where the new tax legislation will originate, sentiment appeared developing against adoption of untried economic devices such as the flexible income tax system advocated by a group of 170 economists.

The flexible tax system, under which the rate would fluctuate with living costs, was advanced chiefly as a means of offsetting the inflationary effects of the nation's multi-billion dollar defense spending program.

Committee members said privately, however, they did not believe the inflation danger was sufficiently imminent to warrant the government embarking on any "experimental" economic policies such as the flexible tax system or compulsory diversion of savings into government securities.

DRAFT BOARDS AID SPEED-UP

In Washington, defense officials said they would seek changes necessary to obtain sufficient men for President Roosevelt's speed-up program. One change they suggested would permit the president to order blanket deferments of men in vital defense industries.

The army already has taken steps to release men already in camps if it is found they can do more good on defense jobs back home. The men would be given honorable discharges from the army.

Spokesmen for William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman of the federal office of production management, said "a key man on the assembly line is worth many men in uniform."

Knudsen today appealed to makers of machine tools for an "immediate" three-shift, seven-day week basis of operation in plants producing planes, tanks, and guns, an Associated Press from Washington said.
